Washington, April 6.—(AP)—With Henry Ford reported ready with a counter-bid, a group of southern power companies came forward today with proposals for leasing Muscle Shoals. Thomas W. Martin, president of the Alabama Power company, acted as spokesman for the power interests and for more than two hours discussed with the joint Muscle Shoals congressional committee the merits of a bid which they expect to submit by Saturday, the deadline set by the committee.

Mr. Ford was reported as having already prepared a bid but that he might withhold offering it until the recommendations of the committee are placed before the senate and house. There it could be offered as a substitute for the power company's proposal.

Atlanta Company Represented.

The power companies were represented as controlling a capital of $150,000,000. It was the first time during congressional consideration of Muscle Shoals that power companies of Arkansas, Kentucky and Florida were found among the bidders. The companies associated in the proposed joint bid include the Alabama Power company, Arkansas Light and Power company, Louisiana Power and Light company, Mississippi Light and Power company, Mississippi Power company, Tennessee Power company, Kentucky Utilities company, Gulf Electric company, of Florida, Georgia Railway, Light and Power company, Memphis Power and Light company and Kentucky Power company.

The committee pointed out that any bidder for Muscle Shoals must make a required 40,000 tons of fixed nitrogen annually, indicating that it would be influenced more by a proposition to make cheap nitrogen than by a monetary rental.

Big Rental to Be Paid.

It was understood that the power companies would turn over the problem of making nitrogen to Theodore Swan, a chemical manufacturer of Winston, Ala. In addition to manufacturing the fertilizer, it was reported that the companies agreed to pay an annual rental of $2,000,000 for dam No. 2 and $1,500,000 for dam No. 3, if it is constructed, for 30 years, making a total of $175,000,000.

It was further understood that the companies offered to pay an annual rental of 4 per cent interest on the cost of construction of a storage dam at Cove creek, on the headwaters of the Tennessee river, if the government would build it. This dam generally would increase the primary horsepower at Muscle Shoals.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for Thursday when Elton H. Hooker will discuss a resolution which he expects to present Saturday.

Officials of the Georgia Railway and Power company explained Tuesday night that the company's name was used in the Muscle Shoals bid only as a subsidiary of the Southwestern Power and Light company, of which Mr. Martin is president.

LIBERALISM WINS IN MAYOR'S FIGHT; BAPTIST IS ELECTED

Clarence, Mo., April 6.—(AP)—Liberalism triumphed over fundamentalism in Clarence's mayoralty election today when J. C. Maupin, former Baptist preacher, whose stand on biblical interpretations had been made an issue, defeated L. J. Peterman by a majority of 110 votes.

The final vote as tabulated showed Maupin with 395 and his opponent 285.

The campaign for the office had stirred this little Shelby county town to a religious issue, was raised because of Maupin's defense in 1922 of the liberal views of Dr. A. Wakefield Staten, who was ousted from the faculty of William Jewell college at Liberty, Mo., for what was termed too liberal terms in his book, "What Jesus Taught." Maupin led a body of students which demanded Staten's retention.

PLAN TO DISMISS CHARGE AGAINST WIFE OF PONZI

Jacksonville, Fla., April 6.—Charges against Mrs. Charles Ponzi, who was indicted with her husband in connection with their Florida real estate operations, will be dismissed, it was announced Tuesday by County Solicitor L. D. Howell.

The solicitor indicated he would ask Judge Peeler in criminal court to drop the case on the next plea day, April 20.

The authorities are satisfied with the conviction of her husband, who was found guilty by a criminal jury last week of violating a state law by failing to file a declaration of trust for his Charpon Land syndicate.

BROOKHART CASE BRINGS ARGUMENT

Senate Debates Whether Iowa Law or Intent of Voter Should Rule in Election.

Washington, April 6.—(AP)—The senate was called on today to determine whether the law or the intent of the voter should be the deciding factor in the Iowa senatorial contest.

Contending that the senate elections committee was a judge within itself, Chairman Ernst, democrat, Kentucky, who favors the seating of Dan F. Steck, democrat, argued that the intent of the voter should be the dominating factor, while Senator Stephens, democrat, Mississippi, leading the fight for Senator Brookhart, republican, contended the election laws of Iowa should settle the issue and that any other method would be a reflection on the voters of that and every other state.

Contending Views.

If the voters' intent principle is adopted, both Senators Ernst and Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, declared Steck should be declared a winner in the 1924 election and admitted to the senate. Dissenting from the majority of the committee, Senator Stephens held that Brookhart was elected by law and in fact and warned that the case should be settled judicially and not politically.

The Mississippi senator declared he stood in defense of Brookhart's right to his seat in face of numerous telegraphic requests from his own state for him to support Steck, a democrat.

These telegrams, he said, constituted a "gross insult" to him.

Chairman Ernst denied that political motives had influenced the majority of the committee in concluding that Mr. Brookhart should be seated and insisted that the "fact that Brookhart was not a good republican" had not entered into the case.

George Questions Stephens.

The three senators as they continued debate on the case, were interrupted repeatedly, Senator Ernst finally declining to answer questions on the grounds they already had been answered. Senator George, democrat, Georgia, a member of the subcommittee that investigated the case, was the chief interrupter of Senator Stephens.

He said that agreements entered into by representatives of Brookhart and Steck on stipulations governing the recount were binding, while Senator Stephens argued they did not bind the senate, which should consider the case open-mindedly and on the basis of law.

Sister Mourns at Cemetery As Chapman Is Laid To Rest

NO PRIEST, NO FLOWERS AS BANDIT IS BURIED

Ray M. Wiley, lawyer of Springfield, Mass., these and the executed man's sister were the mourners. Dillon, the undertaker, was the fourth man. They had gathered at Dillon's in the early morning hours and before they left for the cemetery they opened the gray plush coffin and gazed for a moment on the dead man's face. It was quiet and composed.

Ship Out Back Way.

To escape the morbidly curious crowd they slipped the casket out the back way and sneaked out behind it, a single car following the motor hearse to the burial ground.

And there the grave which they had had a whole year to prepare, wasn't finished. They set the coffin down on the turf amid the pitiful stones that mark this dismal section of the cemetery and again opened the casket for a last look at the dead man.

Then the sister fell to her knees and prayed while she wept. She felt the tragedy more keenly because of her failure to see her brother before he died. There was an ironic touch to the episode. Chapman, the lonely, had had no visit from friend or relative after his conviction. He went to the noose, thinking they would not come—and the sister, who had been denied admission, stood in the throng of 3,000 curious outside the prison walls, while the gruesome ceremony of justice went on within.

Denied Entrance.

This denial was due to the fact she came out to the prison alone and the authorities felt she was merely another of the numerous unfortunates of her sex who had pretended interest in the case.

They were assured by a county detective that the woman was not related to the doomed man. They thought he knew what he was talking about and refused to let her in. After Chapman had been yanked into eternity, on the strange scientific hanging machine, they used in Wethersfield, she sought out his lawyers and so won consideration. The attorneys in turn told newspaper men of her experience. And they took her to her brother's grave. They stood by and watched her pray, while he was buried, and escorted her safely back out of the spotlight that flooded the career of the so-called super-criminal who died as a common

James Perkins, 24, of Forrest Park, was taken to Grady hospital late Tuesday night in a serious condition from a gunshot wound in the abdomen, which he told Call Officers W. A. Cheung and J. H. Crankshaw, was self-inflicted.

He told officers he was on the Brown Mill road at the time he shot himself, and after firing the gun, staggered to the nearby home of C. R. Cook, who rushed him to the hospital in an automobile.

Perkins refused to tell why he wished to end his life, except that he was "in trouble." He said he was not married.

So far as has been learned here his plane had not been sighted after leaving Elko.

ROTARIAN LAUDS CITY ADVERTISING

Campaign To Bring Big Industries to Atlanta Is Discussed by Frank M. Neely.

Interesting glimpses behind the scenes of Atlanta's great national advertising campaign, now in process of publication, were given to members of Atlanta Rotary Tuesday at their regular weekly luncheon in the Capital City club. The remarks on the advertising which this city is doing were made by Frank M. Neely, manager of M. Rich & Bros. Co., an organization which has built great good will through powerful and continuous advertising of the Rich store and its daily offerings to men and women of Atlanta, Georgia and other sections of the south.

Atlanta already is getting direct results from its advertising campaign and the effects of the campaign will be shown much more in the future by the locating here of nationally known industries, Mr. Neely stated in his address. He outlined the program of the advertising campaign and explained the workings of the committee selected to direct the campaign. One of the outstanding features, he said, was to select the type of industries desired in Atlanta, industries which would furnish the city more profits and could operate most efficiently here.

Wide Field Covered.

Collection of this data covered a wide field including data from the chamber of commerce, local business executives, technical men in New York and other cities, and many other sources, he declared.

"Information gathered from these sources enabled us to know what we could offer in comparison with other cities, enabled us to promote advertising so that we could appeal to the right type and kind of people that we hope to influence," Mr. Neely continued.

"In laying out the schedule of this advertising, it was found that general publicity was necessary and 30 per cent of the money is to be spent in to attract industry—to host and such magazines as will be nationwide."

"The remainder of the money will be spent in some 20 trade journals, which appeal direct to executives and people in the technical end of industries."

Appeal to Big Men.

"The whole campaign has been built to attract industry—to influence men who direct and control industry and to show them by logical and inescapable reasons why they

Own-A-Home Show Crowds Growing Larger Each Day

Huge throngs packed the auditorium to capacity Tuesday afternoon and night, the second day of the Atlanta Own-a-Home show, milling around and inspecting the wide variety of beautifully displayed exhibits. No admission is charged this year and men, women and children crowd the building daily during the hours the show is open to the public, according to Clyde C. Stogner, director-manager. Practically every known article that adds to the attractiveness and beauty of the home is included in the vast array of exhibits, with someone in each booth to answer questions of the interested and to give detailed information regarding each feature of the home.

Among the most beautiful exhibits this year are those of Avondale Estates, D. C. Black's Buick auto booth, the array of Frigidaires shown by Kelvinator-Atlanta, Inc., the North Boulevard Park exhibit and many others. Indeed, it is difficult to select outstanding booths from the scores of highly decorated and elaborately appointed exhibits.

At every turn visitors are met by courteous officials, who are anxious to direct inquiring persons to whatever particular feature one may wish to see, and at each booth representatives of exhibitors are stationed to answer questions and offer suggestions and advice regarding the service and use of every article shown. "Atlanta is a city of home-lovers," according to Mr. Stogner. "This year's crowds are more interested if possible than those in past years who have attended annual shows. I believe our variety of exhibits are greater and I am sure they are more attractively displayed," he said.

The Own-a-Home show will be open daily the remainder of the week from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 10:30 at night. Free motion picture programs are in progress at all hours, adding to band concerts and other features which add to the appeal of the big show.

BURGLARS RENEW ACTIVITIES HERE

Burglars who have made a series of raids on grocery stores in various sections of the city during the past week, again appeared Tuesday and burglarized the store of L. M. Booser, in East Atlanta, obtaining a quantity of flour, lard and meats, according to reports filed with police Tuesday.

Clyde L. Byfield, of 132 West Peachtree street, reported the theft of a valuable gold watch.

The offices of Dr. J. W. Johnson, 201 Peach street, were raided Tuesday and an electric fan and a quantity of clothing was taken.

Wellborn Sought For Dry Hearing By Wet Counsel

Washington, April 6.—Prohibition hearings will be deprived of interesting testimony unless the senate subcommittee reverses itself and issues subpoenas for wet witnesses.

The wet attorney, Julian Codman, has made a second request for subpoenas. He asked that Roland Corry, sheriff of Monroe county, Fla., be called.

"I am informed he will testify from personal observation that federal enforcement in his district is honeycombed with corruption," Codman said. Mrs. Eva V. White, manager of Elizabeth Peabody settlement home, Boston, would testify that prohibition has resulted in so much flask drinking that the settlement house has had to abolish its neighborhood dances and that morals in the district are worse than before prohibition. Governor Wellborn, of the federal reserve bank, Atlanta, would testify that drinking is almost universal in Georgia. Sheriff Bob Baker, of Palm Beach, Fla., would testify enforcement is practically impossible.

Berry Circle Women Renew Drive for Mother's Building

Renewed interest is being shown in a campaign which was opened quietly in Georgia a year ago by a group of women to erect a building at the Martha Berry school at Rome as a "Tribute of Love to Mothers," according to those in charge.

Many large subscriptions have been made within the past few weeks and leaders of the movement are redoubling efforts to complete subscriptions for $150,000, which is estimated will be sufficient to erect the building. The movement is being directed by the Atlanta Martha Berry circle, composed of more than 250 leading Atlanta women.

The committee in charge of raising funds includes Peyton F. Anderson, of house, chairman, and Mrs. Frank M. Inman, of Atlanta, treasurer. Plans for the building have been drawn and when final contributions are made the building will be erected. Samuel I. Cooper, of Atlanta, is the architect. The Atlanta Martha Berry circle is the only organized body of women in America working for the Martha Berry schools. "Our work is free, and it is a work of love for the accomplishments at Mount Berry," one woman expressed it.

Efforts of those in charge are being rewarded by subscriptions from all parts of the country. Recently a member of the committee spoke to a group of patients in the Battle Creek, Mich., sanatorium and since then a number of subscriptions have been sent by those who listened to the talk, including one check of $5,000.

Actual plans of the building provide for rooms for 125 girls and four teachers.

Members of the committee are anxious to complete subscriptions and have the building ready for occupancy when the $1,000,000 donation to the school is made by Adolph S. Ochs, editor and capitalist.

Sponsors of the opera luncheon, which will be held next Monday have subscribed the proceeds to the building. Those who desire tickets to the luncheon may secure them by calling Mrs. Charles Conklin.

LANKFORD DENIES HE WORKED SUNDAY

Washington, April 6.—(Special.)—Letters and telegrams from all over the country have been received favoring and protesting against his bill for a Sunday observance law here, Representative Lanford, of Georgia, told the house Tuesday.

"I don't relish being abused," he said, "but the more I am abused the surer I am that we are succeeding, especially when the abuse comes from the crowd that is now howling."

"Some praise me and my efforts and speeches to the sky and others threaten to destroy all the churches in the country and lynch me 'to boot' if I don't withdraw my fight for Sunday law here."

Lanford ridiculed the story published in a local paper, in which a reporter stated that the Georgia member had worked all day Sunday in violation of the law he proposes. Lanford said he had gone to his office, as he usually does on Sunday, and had written three letters, and to disprove the story of the day he reported that he had worked for seven hours and had written a whole bundle of letters.

He told the house that his visit to his office and his writing of three letters was not in violation of the law he proposed, which he said forbids the hiring of persons to work on Sunday, and would not interfere with an individual who wanted to go to his office and write a few letters.

Early Settlement Of Tacna-Arica Dispute Is Seen

Washington, April 6.—Secretary of State Kellogg has foreseen an early settlement of the Tacna-Arica dispute, following the first conference here between representatives of Peru and Chile.

Kellogg proposed a "basis of settlement" which he believed could settle forever the long struggle for the two South American provinces, according to a speech by Ambassador Velarde, of Peru, made public by the state department following the meeting.

In promising to submit this to his government immediately, Velarde expressed the hope the present negotiations would result in more success than former attempts. He said that Peru desired peace with no other limitation, than the "unassailable barrier of her own respect."

Somnambulism Blamed By Man Who Attacked Policeman in Park

T. B. Croft, 43, of 129 Iverson street, who was shot through the left foot by Policeman F. B. Jones about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, is trying to convince the jury that he is a somnambulist, and that it Officer Jones' version of the affair is correct, he attacked the officer in his sleep.

The shooting took place in Chatter park where Officer Jones went to investigate complaints of several people, he said. Croft, Officer Jones state in his report, demanded to see the officer's authority.

"When he asked to see my badge a second time, I again pulled back my coat and Croft grabbed for my gun, taking it from the holster. I wrested it from him, however, and he stepped back several steps and began picking up more rocks. I then shot him in the foot," the officer stated.

Croft states that he was asleep when the officer came up and the next thing he remembered was when he was shot in the foot. "I often walk in my sleep and if I attacked the officer it was before I was awakened from my sleep," Croft said.

A blanket charge of suspicion is docketed opposite Croft's name on the police blotter and he will be held until detectives investigate his story.

Surgeons at Grady hospital where Croft was treated before being taken to police station said that they did not believe the bullet fractured any bones in the foot.

Atlanta Jumps Off in Drive
For Finances To Entertain
Disabled Veterans of War

Serenading of The Constitution's Offices Monday Night Brings to a Close First Day's Work.

With heads of business interests, captains and members of divisions of volunteer workers enthusiastically engaged in their initial activities, an appropriate kick-off was given the city-wide offensive, for a $35,000 national convention fund for the Disabled American Veterans of the World War's big convalescence to be held here next June.

The remainder of this week will be given over to an intensive personal solicitation appeal to the citizens of Atlanta to subscribe to the convention fund, with which it is proposed to stage a fitting Atlanta welcome and typical southern reception for the thousands of wounded and disabled world war veterans expected here June 21 to 26, for the sixth annual national convention of the disabled veterans' organization.

Stunts Add to Interest.

Spectacular stunts, well-staged and witnessed by thousands of Atlantians, stimulated interest in the opening of the campaign in the downtown section of Atlanta Monday. At noon a half-dozen members of the Detroit American league baseball club did their "bit" by tossing baseballs from the roof of the Hurt building to club members on the street below. Harry Hellmann, Lou Blue and Adam Fothergill taking an active part in the difficult but successful feat.

Two pretty Atlanta girls, "Charleston" for the crowd while the diamond stars were getting ready for the baseball-catching stunt, the Misses Margaret Moore and Miriam Hull drawing generous applause for their attractive tripping of the light fantastic on the Hurt pavement, with a jazz band from the Musicians' federation playing patriotic and popular airs.

National Guard Parades.

The 122d infantry regiment and band, National Guard of Georgia, turned out Monday night practically 100 per cent in a snappy parade through the principal downtown streets of Atlanta under command of Colonel Charles H. Cox. The guardsmen and their band serenaded The Constitution's veterans. Decorated automobiles brought up the rear of the column, calling attention to the D. A. V. funding drive now under way throughout the city.

Finance Committee Meeting.

The convention finance committee is to meet today at 2 o'clock at the disabled veterans' convalescence headquarters in the Ansley hotel. Asa G. Chandler, Sr., chairman of the committee, will preside. He will hear initial reports of "key" men in various business groups, interests and districts of the city.

The first "over the top" subscription was announced at convention committee, headquarters yesterday morning, a few minutes after the drive was formally begun. Bernard Bernard, who left Sunday night for Tampa, Fla., to be gone from Atlanta two months, sent in his personal subscription for an amount double the quota of the auctioneers' group, which had been assigned to him for soliciting in behalf of the convalescence. Bernard also assured members of the D. A. V. and finance committees that upon his return to Atlanta in early June he will assist in the "mopping up" on any outstanding subscriptions or contributions to the convalescence fund.

Display Cards for Subscribers.

Merchants and individuals subscribing to the general convention fund will be given a display card titled, "Subscriber to Disabled Veterans National Convention Fund," to be prominently displayed in store windows and street doors in advance of and during the convention. The cards, which firms and institutions whose employees subscribe "100 per cent" will be tendered cards giving such credit, for display in their windows.

Atlanta chapter Disabled American Veterans, will meet tonight at the Ansley hotel to caucus for heads and prospective vice chairmen of active working convention committees and subcommittees. Commander James K. Finch is to preside at the meeting. Vaudeville talent will take part in an entertainment program, acts including Miss Margaret Moore, Charleston exponent; Miss Miriam Hull, French toe dancer; Miss Hazel Jones, Oriental-Arabesque dances; Miss Sarah Blodsworth, Charleston and popular dances, and Miss Mary Chalmers, in vocal selections.

Several world war veterans, patients at United States Veterans' hospital, No. 48, will be guests of their Atlanta comrades at tonight's meeting in the Ansley hotel.

Will Address Clubs.

Commander James K. Finch, of the local D. A. V. post, will address the Rotary club luncheon at the Capitol City club this noon, and Joseph O'Connor, national headquarters representative here for a few days, will assist in preliminary convalescence arrangements, will speak to members of the Lions' club at their luncheon meeting in the Ansley rainbow room.

National Liaison Officer William E. Tate will speak on the convention preparations today at 5:30 p. m., from radio station WSB, and James K. Finch will deliver an address. Mayor Belmont's address, the Mercer University Glee club quartet sang.

The citizens' committee assisting in arrangements for the disabled veterans' national convalescence will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the city hall, council chamber, to hear reports on progress made to date in convalescence preparations. Mayor Walter A. Sims will preside at the meeting.

GEORGIA BAPTISTS BEGIN ANNUAL MEET

Albany, Ga., April 6.—(AP)—Everything was in readiness today for the opening session of the sixth annual state convention of the Georgia Baptist Sunday school association. Delegates began arriving Monday, numerous others reached the city today and nearly 1,500 are expected in all.

Sessions of the convention will be held in the municipal auditorium, where, one year ago the greatest simultaneous revival meeting ever known here, in which four Albany churches joined, were in progress.

Tonight's program was a comparatively short one. Dr. Leon M. Latimer, of Griffin, conducted the devotional exercises and following Mayor Belmont's address, the Mercer University Glee club quartet sang.

MEXICO REPLIES TO U. S. OIL NOTE

Washington, April 6.—(AP)—Ambassador Tellez handed Secretary Kellogg today the Mexican reply to the note American note protesting regarding Mexico's petroleum and land laws, presumably concluding the protracted diplomatic exchanges, which have since been resumed.

Mexico City in the last several months had which were initiated by Secretary Kellogg in an attempt to secure American interests in Mexico from retroactive provisions of the two laws.

Should r. Kellogg decide, after he has studied the contents of the new communication that the correspondence should be continued, it necessarily would have to be confined to the application of the statutes as decreed by their promulgation since the laws themselves are no longer subjects against which protest may be made.

It is not thought that Secretary Kellogg will desire to extend diplomatic treatment to the point which will include a discussion of that phase of the controversy.

The correspondence, which has been in progress now totals in excess of 50,000 words, it is estimated, including the formal notes, aides memoire and other incidental documents. Their publication as a whole is being planned by the two governments as soon as Secretary Kellogg has had an opportunity to complete his review of the note he received today.

Retention of Wits
In Ice Trap Saves
Albany Resident

Albany, Ga., April 6.—(AP)—Sam H. Marshall, who was imprisoned in the hardening room of his ice cream factory here Sunday night for a period of more than seven hours when the door latch broke, has somewhat recovered from what he describes as "a most harrowing experience" and is on the road to complete recovery.

Mr. Marshall entered the hardening room at a late hour Sunday to fill a rush order for ice cream, and as he did so the outer door snapped shut, breaking a bolt on the latch. The temperature of the room is kept at two degrees below zero and he was and only in regular street clothes. He was forced to keep in motion throughout the night to keep up circulation and prevent freezing.

"Ten minutes after I was locked inside I began to get cold," said Mr. Marshall this morning in telling of his experience, "and in half an hour my feet were almost frozen. I pulled off my shoes and kept circulation in my feet by constant rubbing."

"In two hours the air was foul and I feared I would suffocate unless I could get a little fresh air. I took a board and prized open a crack in the door, but this helped only temporarily because the refrigerator is a small place. My lungs felt heavy at times, due to the bad air, and I often had an inclination to lie down and go to sleep, but I knew that if I dropped off I would not awaken, so I kept going."

Mr. Marshall has a naturally strong constitution and this helped him to keep moving throughout the night. A negro, coming to work Monday, released him.

Macon, Ga., April 5.—(AP)—Augusta was selected as the next convention city at the first annual convention of the Georgia Affiliated Exchange clubs in session here today.

Other state officers are W. H. Beck, Jr., Griffin, first vice president; W. Lee Morrison, Atlanta, second vice president; William Lester, Augusta, third vice president; W. A. Snipper, Rochelle, treasurer; R. D. Ernst, Savannah, marshal, and Robert Collins, Unadilla, sentry.

There are now eight exchange clubs in Georgia and Mr. Phillips in his acceptance speech said that the goal for this year will be 25 clubs in Georgia.

Thomas L. Bailey, of Meridian, Miss., national president, addressed the convention this morning. An elaborate program of entertainment followed the convention. There was a dinner-dance at the Idle Hour club tonight.

Georgia Oaks To Be Felled
To Rebuild "Old Ironsides"

Brunswick, Ga., April 6.—(Special.)—Live oak timbers for the rebuilding of "Old Ironsides," the famous U. S. frigate "Constitution," will be sought on the islands near Brunswick by a party of cruisers under the direction of Dr. Austin Carey, of the U. S. forestry service. Dr. Carey, who arrived here today, has been assigned to assist the navy department in the work of securing sufficient timber for the frame of the celebrated old frigate, whose exploits form a glorious part of American naval history.

Rebuilding of the ship was started as a result of a nation-wide protest at the proposal to junk it. School children all over the country have contributed to the fund for reconstruction.

The original timbers were cut from live oaks at Cannon's Point on St. Simons island by John Couper in 1794. For years thereafter cutting of ship timber of this quality was a thriving industry near Brunswick.

Haled Into Court
By Society Head

New York, April 6.—(AP)—The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the children's court today threatened the romance of the Cinderella girl, Frances Heenan, and her 51-year-old Prince Charming, Edward W. Browning.

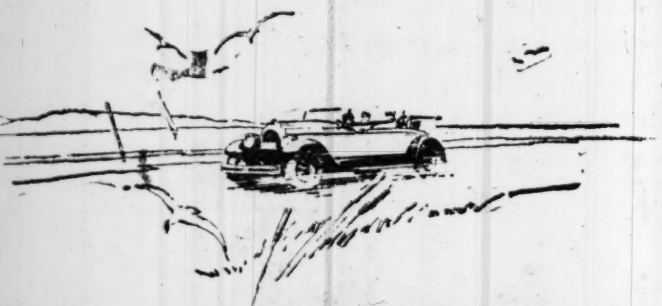

A summons was issued calling for Frances' appearance in children's court, Thursday, with her mother, Mrs. Katherine Heenan, to answer an action brought by the children's society to have Mrs. Heenan removed as her daughter's guardian. Vincent T. Pisarra, superintendent, announced that he would present affidavits to show that Mrs. Heenan is not a fit guardian for the 15-year-old girl, who has declared her intention of marrying the wealthy real estate operator as soon as she has passed her 16th birthday.

BRUNSWICK FARMERS

Brunswick, Ga., April 6.—(Special.)—Shipments of asparagus from the Brunswick district continue to go forward to the eastern markets. The largest factor in the production is the famous Redlands farm in Wayne county, which is regarded as one of the show places of the section. The movement is late by comparison with other years, but both yield and prices are reported to be satisfactory.

HARRY SOMMERS, Inc.*Lunch All You Want--- Pie, Ice Cream, Chicken

Many people are afraid to eat midnight lunches or heavy meals because the food ferments and causes gas. Next time you eat a heavy meal take a spoonful of the mixture of buckhorn bark, glycerine, etc., (known as Adierka) and you will avoid any trouble from fermenting food and gas and will sleep fine.

Many people keep the OUTSIDE body clean but let their INSIDE body stay full of gas and poisons. Give the inside a REAL cleansing with the mixture of buckhorn bark, glycerine, etc., as sold under the name of Adierka. This acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, eliminates metabolic poisons and removes old matter which you never thought was in your system, and which caused sour stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, etc.

Whenever you eat too much heavy food, let Adierka REMOVE the undigested surplus and leave you feeling fine. ONE spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling. Even if your bowels move every day, Adierka brings out much additional matter which might cause trouble. Don't waste time with pills or tablets but let Adierka give your stomach and bowels QUICK relief.

What Doctors Say.
Dr. G. Eggers reports Adierka is the best medicine he has used in 27 years.

Dr. W. H. Bernhart writes he could not get along in his practice without Adierka. Dr. J. J. Weaver, a doctor for 50 years, says he knows no medicine better than Adierka.

Dr. L. Langlois prescribes Adierka regularly with GOOD effect.
J. E. Fuchet writes: "After using Adierka I feel better than for 20 years. AWFUL impurities were eliminated from my system."

Adierka is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because of its REAL and quick action. Sold by leading druggists everywhere.—(adv.)

WET DEMOCRATS GAINING GROUND

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

(U.) Leased from the Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.
Washington, April 6.—With George E. Brennan, democratic boss of Illinois, arriving in Washington at the head of the official Chicago delegation to testify at the senate prohibition hearing, interest was heightened in the moves being made by the faction of the democratic party with which he is identified to capitalize the widespread reaction against Volsteadism.

The wet wing of the party, under the leadership of such men as Governor Al Smith, of New York; Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, and Mr. Brennan is now riding the crest of the wave of public sentiment favoring modification of the Volstead act to permit the individual states to determine whether to remain bone-dry or to permit light wines and beer. The dry wing which still looks to William G. McAdoo for leadership is distinctly on the defensive and perceptibly wavering, if one may judge from the attitude of numerous democratic statesmen from dry constituencies who have voted, but now since an unmistakable change of sentiment in favor of modifying the extreme rigors of prohibition.

Convention Fight Seen.

So far the dry democrats have been able to keep the prohibition issue out of national elections and to prevent the incorporation of any wet or moist plank in the national platform of the party. The popular reaction against Volsteadism has now reached a point, however, that raises a doubt of the ability of the drys to hold their ground in the next democratic national convention. The trend is all in the direction of the platform declaration for modification of the Volstead act on the states' rights principle, if not a direct vote on the question of an outstanding wet candidate for president in 1928.

The leaders of the wet faction are convinced that, with prohibition the issue, the democrats, frankly espousing a modification program, would be able to sweep the east and the major portion of the middle west and still hold the dry solid south in line—all of which they think would assure election of a democratic president. This reasoning is based on the assumption that the republican party will remain the sheet anchor of the drys, refusing to make any platform concessions to the modifications. With that sort of a situation the wet Jeffersonians believe they could win the republican party east of the Mississippi.

Mr. Brennan declined to discuss the national political aspects of the movement with which he is identified and denied that his candidacy for United States senator is intended merely to promote the candidacy of Al Smith for the democratic nomination for president. The Illinois boss does not conceal his admiration for Smith, whom he did his utmost to nominate in 1924, and does not deny that if he should be elected to the senate next November the wet cause would gain immensely in prestige. Mr. Brennan, however, made it clear that he is not looking beyond Illinois at present.

Brennan Confident.

So many republicans favoring modification of the Volstead act have written and telephoned to Mr. Brennan their intention to support him for senator that he is now confident he will be elected even in a state so overwhelmingly republican as Illinois. These republican promises of support have been elicited because both Senator McKinley and Colonel Smith, the candidates for the republican nomination, are dry. Mr. Brennan appears to have met the republicans half way, assuring them that he foresees no issue on which he cannot support President Coolidge to the satisfaction of the most capacious communicant of the G. O. P. Mr. Brennan believes that prohibition is bound to be the paramount issue in the November elections. With this in the issue in Illinois, Mr. Brennan is going to try to split the republican party in that state on the prohibition question just as the wet eastern democrats believe they could rend the G. O. P. in a national election and capture such normally republican states as New York, New Jersey, and Massachusetts. The Illi-

ANDREWS ADMITS DRY CORRUPTION

been on the prohibition rolls in the six years of the Volstead act.

"That's 875 dishonest men in 10,000," Reed observed.

"I am only speaking of discovered corruption, not of the corruption you haven't discovered," said Reed. He asked Andrews how prohibition agents were selected.

"Well, the Women's Christian Temperance union and the Anti-Saloon league make recommendations," Andrews said.

"So you will probably get as many crooks in the future as you do now," Reed observed.

Andrews Retorts.
"Yes, but we drop them awfully fast," retorted Andrews. "I don't have nearly as much trouble with crooks as I do with fools. Stupidity is the greatest vice."

"So you go on the theory that you can depend upon fools more than crooks," said Reed. Andrews only laughed.

Explaining the system of discharging agents under suspicion, Andrews said that if the unit did not wish to give the reason for dismissing an agent, it could find some other one.

"Just as you could find a reason for discharging me, before night," he added to Reed.

"I certainly could," the senator agreed.

Questioned about methods by which agents obtain evidence, Andrews said that it was unpleasant duty to have to drink liquor to make a case.

"It is so poor that no man drinks it willingly," he explained when the spectators laughed. His agents work more than eight hours a day, he added.

"Not with the permission of the American Federation of Labor," Reed interrupted.

Getting with an unlighted cigarette, Andrews said that arbitrary powers to revoke alcohol permits is very necessary if the situation is to be controlled.

Alcohol Evil.
"I am willing to give a reason," he said. "I don't want to obstruct legitimate business, but if this business is to be stopped, drastic measures are necessary."

Reed suggested that too much discretion ought not be left to a force, 875 of whom, had been dismissed for "crookedness."

Andrews intoned that most whisky sold now is "cut."

"What do you mean by that?" Walsh, Montana dry, asked.

"Well they take a quart of rye whisky, mix it with three quarts of alcohol and get four quarts of rye whisky," Andrews explained.

"Plus water," Reed corrected.

"I forgot the water," Andrews admitted.

Making Liquor.
"Just so Senator Walsh can understand this," Reed continued, "though I have never performed the operation, I'll tell you about it. They take a barrel of rye whisky, a couple of barrels of alcohol and just as much water as necessary to reduce the proof and turn out six barrels of rye whisky."

"That's right," Andrews said.

"And it's the best whisky on the market," added Reed.

"I guess," replied Andrews.

"How about these unrefillable bottles," Walsh said, "are they unrefillable?"

Andrews referred the question to his assistant, James E. Jones, director of prohibition, who was sworn.

"I don't think so," Jones said. "All it takes to refill a nonrefillable bottle is a little patience." Reed observed.

"You just fill it slowly and it is very trying on the nerves of the man who is waiting for a drink."

enforced "only by the most stringent and repulsive of methods."

Taking up the discussion, Representative O'Connell, democrat, New York, said New York republicans were "falling over themselves" to give the voters of that state a referendum because of the obvious change in sentiment.

Until the newspaper polls on prohibition were tabulated, he added, New York republicans were "completely under the domination of the Anti-Saloon league."

JOINT COMMITTEE TO OFFER DRY CASE.
Washington, April 6.—A joint committee composed of the legislative representatives of eight dry organizations having permanent headquarters in Washington will have charge of the prohibitionists' case before the senate judiciary committee next week, it was announced late Tuesday.

The organizations represented will be the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, Anti-Saloon league, International Reform Federation, National Temperance bureau, Good Templars, Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the commission on social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

Women will be given the first opportunity to testify Monday, it was said.

Senator Lenroot To Be Candidate For Reelection

Washington, April 6.—(P)—Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, who led the administration fight in the senate for American adhesion to the world court, announced tonight that he would be a candidate for renomination in the senatorial primaries on September 7.

This announcement sets at rest reports which first became current during the senate court fight that Senator Lenroot would retire at the end of his term next March 4 and become associated with a New York firm.

In his battle for renomination, the senator will be opposed by a candidate selected by the progressive wing of the republican party in Wisconsin, of which Senator La Follette is the recognized leader. This will be renewed the contest of last year when Senator Lenroot led the opposition to the election of Mr. La Follette to file out the unexpired term of his father.

ACTION ON GEORGIA JUDGESHIP BILL POSTPONED AGAIN

Washington, April 6.—(Special).—The house judiciary committee postponed action Tuesday on the bill creating a new judicial district in Georgia, but will take it up at another meeting Thursday.

Several members expressed confidence after the meeting Tuesday that the committee would report the bill favorably Thursday.

Representative Larsen appeared before the committee Tuesday and explained the bill, stating that the Georgia delegation was insistent that an additional district be created, as provided by the bill, instead of a "floating" judge. Representative Lankford was also present, but said nothing.

Lankford stated afterward that he still stands for placing the Valdosta division in the middle district instead of the southern, as provided in the bill, but might not fight the measure on the floor. He emphasized, however, that he is making no promise.

THE CRUCIAL HOUR.

The house of representatives will vote this morning on the measure to increase the gasoline tax in Georgia from 4 cents to 5 cents a gallon. On the various amendment votes Tuesday the opponents to this bill, amended or otherwise, stood like a solid phalanx with an almost two-to-one strength. The bill, therefore, is doomed, as it should be.

The vote today should not only sound the death knell of the increase gas tax bill, but of all prospective measures seeking to unduly and abnormally tax the people through excessive commodity levies, that must be passed on to the consuming public.

Taxation is necessary only as an investment in governmental services. It should be distributed on a fair and equitable basis. Any commodity or sales tax that imposes a 25 per cent or more gross levy upon the non-tax retail price of an article of trade is unfair and discriminatory. It is held by eminent constitutional lawyers that such a tax could not hold before a court of equity.

The motorists have agreed to a 4-cent gasoline tax in Georgia— which everyone must admit is an abnormal sales tax—specifically as investments in paved highways. They are not getting them in a coordinated system and will never get them on a pay-as-you-go plan. It would be foolish, from every viewpoint of justice, to again increase that tax to further perpetuate a system that is inefficient and that never functions in the building of a state-wide county seat network of paving.

The demand is not for more taxes, but for a cessation of the local bond burdens, a capitalization of the present motor taxes, and the business-like progress of road building with funds sufficient to complete the entire state road mileage within a reasonable time—seven years being ample.

Georgia does not need to impose more taxes of any kind. She needs greater service for the tax dollar, and for governmental system and economy that will lower rather than increase the burdens of the people.

The tax increase bill should be drastically killed, and this should be followed by a submission to the people the question as to whether or not they want a paved highway system in five years with gasoline and license taxes, or a continuance of the present crazy-quilt road plan throughout an indefinite future with county bonds and increased property taxes.

The issues are definite and clear cut. The legislature has the opportunity in its hands to—within the next few hours—put Georgia back in the procession of progress, and call to her head the crown of Empire State of the South.

WOUNDED VETERANS.

The people of no city in America are more generous to every worthwhile cause than are those of Atlanta. They have donated to one good cause and another nearly two million dollars in the past seven months.

The call of the hour is for $35,000 to pay for the entertainment of the Disabled American Veterans' national convention to be held in Atlanta in June. Asa G. Candler, Sr., is chairman of the committee and a large personal contributor, as he and the members of his family are to every worthy cause. The campaign—not a large, but vigorous one—is progressing satisfactorily.

It ought to be a privilege to participate, even if with a small contribution, to the comfort and happiness of these boys who came back from the battlefields of northern France with the wounds of victory. The scars of battle are medals of honor—and Atlanta will pay them a fitting and deserved tribute.

THE CHAPMAN CASE.

The whole country will breathe easier now that Gerald Chapman has faded from life's picture. Because of an intellectual cunning that was more acute than ordinary in one who deliberately seeks crime as an avocation, Chapman had more than a mere underworld appeal, and because of this he assumed a defiant vanity that hurt rather than helped his battle for commutation. At the same time it covered him with a sordid type of "criminal glory" that finally found its emptiness at the end of the hangman's rope.

He pleaded for "justice" only on the ground that the prosecutor had waged a cold-blooded legal fight for the death penalty, unflinching by the "human side." And in this plea he illustrated the possession of a brain that should have been turned to good account instead of to crime and to the inglorious end that follows crime. Not once did he plead for mercy, and not once did he show a repentant spirit for the long series of offenses against property and life that had marked his ill-spent career.

If capital punishment is the penalty for murder then Chapman paid a just debt, and the law, after far too long a delay, has been vindicated.

There are at least three definite lessons from the Chapman case that ought to impress—first, that crime cannot be made to pay; second, that the law finally is supreme and is no respecter of persons; third, that the great delays of justice, through appeals and technicalities, are destructive to public good.

The man, who at the midnight hour dangled from the end of the gallows in the Connecticut death cell, had, it is alleged, come into illegal possession by his crimes, of immense wealth. It could purchase the talents of great lawyers, and it could defer justice, but it could not give him the liberty to enjoy his ill-gotten gains, nor could it give him even a natural life within prison walls. He had more intelligence than the average bandit, but neither the money he had stolen, nor the brain he had abused, nor the able counsel he had employed, could break down in the final showdown the supremacy of law—or stay inexorably delayed justice.

The multitude of men and women, young and old, who are criminally inclined may find in Chapman's empty life and inglorious death a sermon that should help to direct their feet to paths that are straight.

In the last place, the outstanding lesson of destruction to public good by delays in the punishment of crime, through legal avenues and technicalities more pronounced in American laws than in those of any other nation on earth, was more accentuated in the Chapman case than in any recent years. The murder for which he finally paid was committed nearly two years ago. Time after time, from one court to another, with one technicality and another, the execution of the first sentence in the summer of 1924, was deferred. In the meantime the "master criminal" became the "hero" of a morbid sentiment that tears at the morals of the young, and even has a tendency to undermine good government.

Had Chapman paid the penalty a year or more ago, as he would have done had the crime been committed in England, or in any of the old countries of Europe, the people of this country would have been spared much to disturb them, and the moral atmosphere of the country would have been clearer and more wholesome. Just one case of this kind can do untold injury among the millions of young people who are in the impressionable ages.

Let this be a lesson to "impel real reform."

The Indianapolis News says that "the trouble about that Oklahoma oil field that yields 1,000 barrels an hour, is that every hour makes somebody's income tax higher!"

The woodland opera of the birds has been postponed indefinitely. The master musician hasn't trilled a note since spring was sidetracked on the frosty way.

Nowdays, if the candidate doesn't find the farmer in field or home, he can generally trace him by his auto, parked in front of the town bank.

Those who really believe that spring has arrived report the presence of butterflies, with their wings silvered by frost.

The bull weevil is the joy-killer that never fails to arrive when the farmer is figuring on this year's cotton acreage.

They'll never make the railroad tracks safe for the intrepid autoist unless they barricade them on both sides.

Florida sends her regards to Georgia by the army of home-returning tourists who are convinced that enough's too much.

THE WORLD'S LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PASSEEN

Dawn of Understanding.

The Civitas Cattolica, a review in closest touch with the vatican, prints this month an exhaustive description of the proceedings of the stockholm conference, which was attended by representatives of various Protestant bodies, the Anglican community, and the Greek church. The review is reprinted in the official vatican paper and is in no sense hostile. It was also significant to observers that during the Basilean conference of the Council of Nicaea, a Greek mass was sung by Uniat prelates with tremendous pomp under the dome of St. Peter's in the presence of the pope, the cardinal and the diplomatic corps. The policy of the Roman church is unmistakably conciliatory toward these bodies, the validity of whose sacraments, the vatican has contested. A recent book by a Barnabite priest and warmly recommended by the vatican paper speaks in "friendly satisfaction" of the recent Cardinal Mercier and Anglican churchmen. Friendly attention is also paid to the presence in Rome of an American (Episcopal) clergyman, Mr. William Ladd, who is endeavoring to initiate a movement for the observance by all Christians of the "Feast of Christ's Kingship," recently instituted by the pope. Yet all these things do not point to anything spectacular in the form of an immediate reunion. The vatican is in a conservative mood, and six years' delay is a mere bagatelle. And yet it may be the dawn of understanding.

Most girls know the requirements and have their hangers on ready for the debut, clapping and stamping their feet as if they were paid for it and—maybe they are.

Cocaine War.

Hungary not only sends France some carloads of forged bank notes, but also sends her some carloads of cocaine. The cocaine is increased since it has been discovered that large shipments of cocaine arrive daily in Paris from Budapest. Strange to say, certain vicious underworld pamphlets that circulate at night by the thousands on the boulevards rejoice in the arrival of such stores of narcotics. The writers of these pamphlets, in all likelihood, themselves addicts, say that the use of the deadly white powder will help in the development of artistic instincts, and that the more cocaine Paris uses the more noble and esthetic will become its vision and outlook. They cite Baudelaire, the great poet, who once magnified the use of cocaine as a means of benefit derived from a pinch. But they do not add that Baudelaire remarked that after all he preferred to be a Parisian policeman instead of being a victim to "hashish" hallucinations. While decent people are uniting to combat the drug menace, the Parisian police is accused of laxity in apprehending the thousands of natural vendors on the boulevards, the metro stations and other public places. An editorial in Figaro even suggests that there is a possibility that the police in some instances are cooperating with the fiends who practice this nefarious trade.

Never Satisfied.

Oriel, one of Oxford's most famous colleges, is preparing to celebrate its six hundredth anniversary. A memorial book has been compiled for the occasion, in which, among other matters, a history is given of the personalities of the college. The book is a memorial to the college since its foundation. One of the most famous of these was a Dr. Hawkins, whose peculiarities hardly ever came in contact. He seemed unhappy unless he could find some unfavorable comment for each undergraduate who came before him. He was a strict disciplinarian, and he kept the record of chapel attendances constantly at hand for reference. One day a student of King's college, a fellow of Lincoln, appeared at the judgment table. Hawkins glanced at the record and remarked: "I observe, Mr. King, that you have never missed a single chapel morning or evening during the whole term." Could it be, thought King, that the provost was actually going to praise him. The wild hope was nipped in the bud. "No, sir," said Hawkins grimly, "that even too regular attendance at chapel may degenerate into mere formalism."

Land of Hunger.

"Pays de la Faim" (Land of Hunger), a recent French book, purports to give a picture of the frightful situation that existed in Russia during the great Volga region famine of some years ago. Sir Philip Gibbs and others have made the world acquainted with some of the horrible phases of that catastrophe which cost more than ten million lives. Sir Philip admitted he had noticed cases of cannibalism as a return to most primitive and savage ways. This new book describes with a realism that is nauseating how human beings resort to various methods in order to consume the bodies of the dead. The disease naturally spread like wildfire. The peasants were seized with panic, deserted their homes, and started on foot for the nearest cities. The authorities, lacking of medical supplies, wished to prevent the influx of typhoid fever. They sent out patrols on the steppes. A doctor accompanied each patrol. They encountered groups of peasants, the doctor gave each one a dose of quinine, and the soldiers shot every man, woman or child who was infected. In this way the hordes prevented typhoid from starting its ravages in the congested cities.

Poems I Love

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE.

"To Celis," by Ben Jonson.
"The perfect lyric," this is known poem has been called. It is as fragrant today as in the hour when it was written. It would be impossible to write of it. Repetition of the simple strengthens one's conviction that it contains all the elements of great poetry.

The Elizabethan flavor is in it, of course. The lover who haunted the Mermaid Tavern; the fiery playwright who once killed a man; the witty playwright and actor—it is all of these who helped to make this single song.

The rhyme scheme is interesting. The seventh line of the first stanza is of course to rhyme with the third line, and so on. The ninth line, people out of ten will sing it "sip." But here it is, as it should be retained:

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
Or I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss in the cup,
And I'll not ask for wine.
The thirst that from the soul doth rise,
Doth ask a drink divine;
But might I do Jove's nectar sup,
I would not change for thine.

Not so much honoring thee,
As giving it a hope that there
Some water of life will be,
But thou thereon didst only breathe;
"To my little Irish rose"—
And sent it back to be:
Since when it grows, and smells, I swear,
Not of itself, but thee.

Dr. Carter Helm Jones Is Principal Speaker At Lions Club Meet

Dr. Carter Helm Jones, pastor of Second Baptist church, was principal speaker Tuesday at the noon luncheon of the Lions club at the Ansley hotel. He spoke on civic clubs and benefits derived from such clubs by cities.

George Konklm, of Augusta, district governor of Lions, was guest of honor. In a short business session, plans were discussed to bring the international Lions convention to Atlanta in 1927.

New members, Ben Belinberg and Bob Pennington, alderman from the first ward, were formally inducted. A program of piano music was given by Miss Ruby Bowden.

New York, April 6.—When the song and dance gals complete their course at the instruction studios, they can't just walk into some producer's office, grab the fountain pen and sign on the dotted line of a contract for them. No, the young ladies must first answer some very pertinent questions. It does not matter great deal what trade or profession their father or mother follows. Nor will the producer seek to ferret out of them the rare intelligence so eagerly sought by army recruiting officers, namely on what their grandpa parted his whiskers.

But one thing he must know: "Have you a Broadway following?" Which means have you got a bunch of admirers and friends who will take first-row seats or boxes at the show, who will applaud you whether you make good or not, who will send flowers to the stage when you complete your act and who will take you to exclusive cabarets and night clubs after the performance to show off your beauty and attractiveness?

Not only are actresses confronted with this demand but girls applying for jobs as cloak, suit and hat models are asked the same question: "Have you got a following? Will you bring the house new customers, can you induce wealthy patrons to come and inspect our goods?"

The want ad columns are filled with jobs for girls with a following. A roadhouse on the Hudson a piece has introduced an atmosphere of suspense for its base and weary clientele. Whether the wente are genuine cops are not, nobody knows, but this much is certain that each night the blue-coated constabulars drop in for a visit and glasses and bottles must be below table during their presence.

Some customers suspect it's all a trick to dis- se of large quantities of liquor. For each time the look-out boy outside blows his whistle, signal of approaching enemies, every guest drains his glass or the half-consumed bottle on the table. And when a moment later the all-clear blast goes, a new supply has to be ordered, of course.

A club in the Fifties had a similar bright idea to pep up the evening. They staged hold-ups by masked bandits. Then came the night when a gang of real stick-up men showed up and the diners and drinkers were a long time recovering from their surprise when they were treated to something that was not in the program. The bandits namely to make pursuit impossible, asked the gentlemen present to take off their trousers and shirts, and to wear a pair of pants with 29 pairs of pants. The garments were later found strewn along the white way, gathered up and taken to the police. The girls, however, they have lain unclaimed these many days.

HOUSE VOTES DEFEAT OF GAS TAX BILL

age upon minor measures placed on the afternoon calendar by the rules committee empowered so to act by unanimous consent of the house granted on Speaker W. Cecil Neill's request Monday.

Cheek was murdered in a grocery store on the night of December 19. His wife and two of his children witnessed the slaying. Jack Wilson, the fourth of the alleged bandit gang, was alleged to have fired the fatal shot, according to testimony brought out in the Gore trial, covered the grocer with a pistol.

H. A. Dennard, of 184 Ormond street was shaken-up and slightly cut by flying glass and Mrs. Sarah Donehoo, of the same address, sustained a broken hip and lower injury to the leg when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a street car on Pryor street, between Tennessee avenue and Bass street.

Mr. Dennard was cut on the head and had several minor bruises. Mrs. Donehoo was carried to the Atlanta hospital for treatment.

The street car was operated by Motorman J. P. McDaniel and was in charge of Conductor A. W. Owens.

Mr. Dennard told police that he attempted to drive past a parked automobile and did not see the street car until it was too late to avoid striking it.

Miss Mamie Queen, of 28 Capitol avenue, was slightly injured Tuesday night when struck down by an automobile operated by W. L. Shields, of 212 Longview street, who fled to police. The accident happened at Whitehall and Alabama streets when Shields attempted to swerve his machine away from another car, according to Motorman D. J. Southern, who investigated.

Shields stopped his car and carried Miss Queen to the Grady hospital where doctors reported that her injuries were slight. Shields was held on a charge of reckless driving.

Jack Plumley, 165 of Eagan Park, was treated at Grady hospital Tuesday night for a gunshot wound in the foot which was accidentally inflicted at the home. The youth had been in a shot when, when exploded, the charge taking effect in his foot.

Defeat of all motions to delay consideration and final defeat of the gas tax bill was construed as victory for bond advocates.

The Harris motion to table the bill, with an eye and may vote defeated by a vote of 90 to 75.

Representative Dykes, chairman of the rules committee, then moved that the committee of the whole be instructed to report back on the bill after not more than one hour and a half, debating time to be equally divided between opponents and supporters of the measure.

Representative Crisp, moved the previous question on Dykes motion after a few minutes of heated parliamentary wrangling, during which the house was divided 15 to 15 minutes was defeated.

Representative Harris finally asked unanimous consent for adoption of the Dykes resolution, which was granted. The speaker then declared the house resolved into committee of the whole for the purpose of reporting on the Dykes resolution, which was resolved the house into committee of the whole.

He explained later that the committee had recognized Representative Harris for the purpose of a motion to postpone, other members were waiting to move the previous question on the entire bill, which would have resulted in shutting off the bill.

When the gas tax bill comes up for formal action this morning, the first motion to be considered will be one by Representative Dykes to amend the bill, for the previous question. This was made before motion to adjourn.

Speakers who supported the Harris bill before the committee of the whole, in addition to the author, included Representatives Boswell, of Green, and Wilhoit, of Warren. Representatives Mann, of Glynn; McClure, of Walker; Tucker, of Berrien, and Doyal, of Floyd, spoke against it.

The senate met for a brief time Tuesday morning, passing a few bills of local interest, and advancing others on the calendar. A house resolution was passed authorizing the governor to accept on behalf of the state any local decorations to its destination a block of granite to be erected at Cornay, France, to commemorate the heroic deeds of the division of the Georgia division which was trained at Camp Gordon and included in its personnel hundreds of Georgians. The division captured the town of Cornay from the Germans during the Argonne offensive.

Holmes Speaks in Gotham.

New York, April 6.—(Special.)—The Hon. Charles C. Holmes, founder of Holmes Institute, Atlanta, Ga., spoke on the education of the southern negro at a meeting of citizens at Bethel A. M. E. church today. After the session, the Georgia preacher left for Washington to confer with senators on his state regarding conditions among colored people of the south.

GUILTY IS PLEA OF BANDIT GIRL

Ruby Ray, girl companion of a bandit trio, entered plea of guilty Tuesday in Fulton superior court to charges of accessory after the fact to murder and robbery. She was sentenced to serve from five to six years imprisonment. Judge W. E. H. Sealey, Jr., presiding in the second criminal division of the court, passed sentence.

The young woman was indicted by a Fulton county grand jury on four counts charging accessory before and after the fact to murder in connection with the slaying on December 19 of William H. Cheek, Peachtree road grocer, and accessory before and after the fact to robbery in connection with the slaying of E. J. Fulton, proprietor of a West End drug store, which occurred a few days before the Cheek slaying.

The charges of accessory before the fact to murder and robbery were not pressed by Judge Sealey, Jr., at the recommendation of Solicitor General John H. Boykin. She was sentenced to serve from two to three years on the accessory after the fact to murder charge and from two to three on the other charge.

Attorney Virlyn B. Moore represented Ruby Ray in entering the plea of guilty.

Others Have Been Sentenced.

The young woman is the third member of an alleged gang of four to be sentenced in connection with the Cheek murder. Theo Berry, Buckhead youth, received a life sentence, and Mel M. Gore, Buckhead barber, was sentenced to the extreme penalty by electrocution.

After conferring with her defense counsel, Attorneys Sam Hewlett and Virlyn B. Moore, in front of a chamber, Ruby Ray walked into the crowded court room. Her lips twitched and her eyes had grown harsh after spending several months in the Fulton county tower. Her step was cautious and she took her seat without glancing around the room. Never did she look away from her counsel, who defended the April number of the American Mercury, banned from newstands as "highly immoral."

After her arrest, Parmenter went home to supper Tuesday night, where was under his arm a green-covered magazine—the now famed April number—bearing that article about the small-town scarlet woman entitled "Hatrack."

By the light of the midnight oil, the judge will absorb Herbert Ashbury's rather interesting word picture of some of the things that he says happened in Farmington, Mo., in his youth. The judge will decide whether the article is anything more than a mere picture of the young, and make public his decision Wednesday morning.

TWO KURT AS AUTO RAMS STREET CAR

MIAMI, Fla., April 6.—Captured with his hands forced to stop at a filling station to get gasoline for his automobile, James D. Ross, 28, of Macon, Ga., was being held here Tuesday night for the shooting of his father-in-law, E. J. Cavanaugh, 48, of Bayonne, N. J., while Mrs. Ross looked on.

Cavanaugh is in a hospital in a serious condition. The extent of his injuries has not been determined.

The shooting followed an argument at the Ross apartment over Mrs. Ross. Ross is said to have slapped her and her father-in-law, who was standing at the top of the stairs watching him, Ross shot Cavanaugh. The couple then left him lying on the stairs and escaped together in a machine.

Mrs. Ross later was put out of the machine and was found by police a short time before her husband was caught.

KIWANIS CLUB OFFERS AWARD FOR LONG SKIRTS

Chicago, April 6.—(P)—Wear long skirts and win a badge is the plea of the All-Chicago Kiwanis club to high school girls.

The Kiwanis plan to give an emblem of honor to each girl whose skirt hangs not more than 12 inches from the ground. And they want every schoolgirl to have a badge.

NEW YORK DRY LAW AMENDMENT FAILS

Albany, N. Y., April 6.—(P)—An attempt to amend the New York State liquor laws to have the Jenks state prohibition enforcement bill amended, failed in the assembly tonight when it was discovered the proposal was unconstitutional.

Assemblyman John Boyle, Jr., republican, who acceded earlier in the day to the request of Canon William Sheehy, of Brooklyn, president of the league, that he offer the amendment, announced that on investigation of court of appeals records, he found a virtually a single case of unconstitutionality, and that he would not suggest the change.

The presence of Canon Sheehy on the floor of the assembly and subsequent disclosure that he desired to amend the Jenks bill to provide for a referendum, resulted in a demand for his expulsion as a "liar."

The demand was upheld by the chair and Canon Sheehy was escorted to the rear of the chamber.

Sponsors of the Carle-Puech bill providing a referendum on modification of the Volstead act amended the measure in both houses today to change the date of the referendum from Nov. 8 to November 2. As amended, it will come up for debate in the senate Monday night.

FURTHER BALMY SPRING WEATHER SLATED FOR CITY

Another day of balmy, spring weather is promised Atlanta by the forecast given out by C. F. von Herrmann, chief of the Atlanta branch of the United States weather bureau.

Late today, however, the section may be visited by thundershowers, according to reports from the weather bureau in Washington.

The mercury reached one of the highest points of the year Tuesday when it registered 79 degrees for a maximum. The lowest recorded was 59 degrees. Temperatures today are scheduled to range about the same as Tuesday.

At present there is no rain in sight for Atlanta, and springlike weather is in sight for several days, Mr. von Herrmann said.

An entertainment program was given under direction of chapter officers, including the special speaker, Margaret Mooring, Sara Rodsworth, Hazel Jones and Miriam Hull.

BY CARL HUBER.

Boston, April 6.—Editor Henry L. Mencken, whose fiery pen has been described by some of his pious enemies as "the thorn in the side of America," Wednesday will know his fate.

He had his day in court here Tuesday when he appeared before Municipal Court Judge Parmenter and defended the April number of the American Mercury, banned from newstands as "highly immoral."

Mencken told the court the Mercury was published by intelligent people for intelligent people. There was nothing in the article that he had written, he insisted, that was so bad as to corrupt the morals of the young.

Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for the American Library conference, who participated in Tennessee's evolution trial, likened the Rev. Mr. Chase to the people of Dayton, who would do nothing to drive a man out of town because he was a "heretic" because they wanted to save their children's souls.

Moscow, April 6.—(P)—In a 3,000-word statement, George Tchitcherin, the soviet foreign minister, reiterates Russia's intention not to participate in the proposed League of Nations conference "because of Switzerland's obstinate refusal to meet the minimum legitimate demands of the soviet government in assuring international peace."

M. Vorovsky, the Russian unofficial observer at the Lausanne conference, was shot and killed by a Swiss citizen, who later was acquitted.

M. Tchitcherin also asserts that the powers have not the slightest intention of fringing about actual disarmament. He adds that a meeting of a preliminary disarmament commission will be "futile comedy" and new proof of the impotence of the League of Nations in assuring international peace.

M. Tchitcherin says Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, at the recent meeting of the League of Nations conference against Russia. He failed to take into consideration the antagonisms among them," supporting Poland's case in the dispute over the compensation for Poland's losses at Lomcarno; he tried to prevent a rapprochement between Poland and Russia, but he overlooked Polish-German controversies.

M. Tchitcherin expresses the opinion that the United States apprehends the influence of the league in the development of the world, and that the South American countries. This apprehension, he declares, has probably caused "semi-official American propaganda in America's neutral attitude in the further work of the league."

Mrs. Byfield Given First Divorce Verdict In Undeclared Suit

Mrs. Sarah G. Byfield was granted a first verdict Tuesday in her undecclared suit for divorce against Clyde K. Byfield, before Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton superior court.

Mrs. Byfield testified that her husband, to whom she was married in June, 1919, frequently was intoxicated and cruel. She alleged that her health was impaired by his treatment. Attorney Ben Conyers appeared in her behalf.

T. Edwards, 69, received a first verdict Tuesday morning following appeal for a divorce from his wife, whom he stated he married in May, 1919. He alleged that Mrs. Edwards deserted him a few months after their marriage, claiming that she no longer loved him.

There were 250 undefended divorce cases on the docket in Fulton superior court Monday. Seventy-five of them were disposed of and Tuesday approximately 50 were retained.

MANAGER HASEE PLANS TO OPEN NEW THEATER

Lewis Hasee, manager of the Atlanta theater, leaves tonight for New York for a two-day business trip in the interest of the new theater now under construction at Peachtree and Linden streets.

Mr. Hasee has taken active charge of the work in erecting the theater and declared Tuesday that he was well pleased with the progress made. He is personally supervising the furnishings.

The theater, the Erlanger, will be one of the finest playhouses in the south, he stated, and will rate well with any in the country. When completed, the Erlanger will be one of the show places of Atlanta and nothing being neglected to add to the comfort of patrons. Finishing touches will be completed before another season opens in Atlanta.

In addition to his other duties, Mr. Hasee is directing the staging of the three one-act plays to be given at the Atlanta theater May 7 by the Oglethorpe players. Casts for two of the plays have been selected and rehearsals are being held.

Mr. Hasee expressed the opinion Tuesday the plays being offered by the Oglethorpe players this year will be the best in the history of the club. Offering of plays at the theater by the club is an annual event. These plays are written by the students and will be presented by members of the club. Oglethorpe university is the only school in the south to produce plays written by the students.

The two plays for which the cast has been selected are "The Star" and "Maybe Later." The third, a satirical playlet on the Florida craze, is expected to tax the playing capacity of the club. It is as yet unnamed.

California lemon juice, natural tonic, offsets "acidity," frequently cause of many disorders, including high blood pressure.

Although slightly "acid," California lemons have an alkaline reaction in the blood which serves to offset "acidity" and digestion (the main cause of constipation), restore appetite and generally tone up the system.

Take juice of one California lemon in cup of hot water one-half hour before breakfast every morning and note results in ten days. These results have surprised thousands who now use this simple and effective tonic daily.

'Cinderellas' Sought To Wear Shoes in Show

Now is the time for all Atlanta girls with "cute" feet to step out and show their stuff.

Officials of the Southeastern Shoe Retailers' association want to engage some Atlanta girls to serve as models in the style shows to be held next week during the annual convention of that organization.

Tests will be given at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in parlor E at the Ansley hotel. Girls must be able to wear shoes of "4-B" size.

This is a chance for local "Cinderellas" to display their charms in a style show which will be unique in the shoe industry. Girls will not be required to stand on runways but simply will be asked to wear the different new styles in footwear at exhibits to be shown here.

Displays at the Ansley are not shown in connection with the style show to be staged by the Junior League Follies Tuesday night for the benefit of the visiting shoe dealers.

This year's convention is expected to surpass all previous conventions of this organization both in the number of exhibits and in attendance.

Big Insurance Firm Celebrates Fiftieth Anniversary Week

An outstanding event in the insurance world during the current week is the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Central Manufacturers Mutual Insurance company, whose home office is in Van Wert, Ohio.

The Central Manufacturers is one of the largest and strongest mutual companies in the United States engaging in a general fire insurance business. The principal lines of insurance written are fire, automobile and tornado risks.

Starting in 1876 with cash assets of $9,871.20, the Central Manufacturers Mutual Insurance company has grown steadily until its cash assets at the close of 1925 totaled $3,052,457.87, a record of which the officials of the company are justly very proud. In 1876, the net cash surplus of the company was $3,680.25 and this has grown in the fifty years of the company's existence to $1,482,191.29.

Under the mutual plan of operation, whereby policyholders share in the savings and profits of the company, the Central's policyholders received in 1876 the sum of $4,401.80, while in 1925, they received dividends of $536,473.27. Since the organization, a total of $3,921,731.26 has been paid in dividends to the policyholders.

Interesting statistics of the company's growth are found in the record of insurance in force at each ten-year period of the Central's history. In 1876 insurance in force totaled $363,158. In 1886, the total was $2,054,874; in 1896, $3,874,616; and in 1906, the total had reached $615,900.916, while at the beginning of the fiftieth anniversary year, insurance in force was $2,235,527,530.

Another interesting set of figures sets forth the losses paid by the Central during its history. From the modest outlay of $74.03 for losses in 1876, the figures for 1925 showed losses paid of $920,857.02, with a grand total of $6,654,664.40 for the fifty year period.

The Central Manufacturers Mutual Insurance company is represented here by The Southeastern Mutual Insurance agency, J. L. Riley & company, managers, in the Georgia Savings Bank building.

Reid Emphasizes Importance of Road System in Georgia

One of the first steps in developing natural resources of Georgia is the building of a permanent highway system to compare favorably with that of its sister states, H. Jefferson Reid, author and lecturer, declared Tuesday in a talk before the Cooperative club at noon luncheon at the Ansley hotel.

"Georgia is one of the greatest states in the union as to natural resources, but the people of the state seem to have gone to sleep over the fact," he said. "It is always necessary to have a permanent system of highway to allow accessibility and economical transportation, and at the present this state does not have this."

"Instead of waiting for capital and brains to come to the state, let us awaken to the wealth with which nature has endowed us and let this wealth be security for an adequate program of road-building that will surely bring to this state untold wealth."

In addition to the address, a musical program was given.

National Music Week Observance Leaders Meet at Noon Today

Definite plans for the band contest at Lakewood park on May 2 and other events of national music week in Atlanta are to be made by the music week committee of the woman's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting at headquarters at noon today.

The woman's division has sponsored Atlanta's observance of music week for the last three years and plans this year to make it reach a larger number of people than ever before, a goal of 300,000 listeners for the musical programs of the week having been set by the committee.

An organ and choral concert Sunday afternoon, the band contest at Lakewood Monday night, a concert at the Woman's club auditorium Tuesday night and other musical entertainments are being arranged.

REYNOLDS TO ATTEND FLORIDA CONFERENCE

Georgia will be represented in the conference in West Palm Beach, Fla., Friday of leading business men, captains of industry and economic experts, Governor Clifford Walker having named Frank T. Reynolds, president of the Georgia Hotel Men's association, to attend.

The conference has been called by Governor John W. Martin, of Florida, for the purpose of making an economic survey and industrial analysis of the present business situation in Florida. It is said, and leaders in all lines of business have been asked to attend by the Florida chief executive.

Mr. Reynolds not only will represent the hotel men of Georgia but is the state's representative and will submit a report to Governor Walker upon his return to this city early next week. En route to Palm Beach Mr. Reynolds will spend one day in Jacksonville to inspect the new Cavell hotel, being erected there by the Dinkler Hotels company. He is assistant to President Carling Dinkler, of the hotels company.

Railway magnates, hotel officials, bankers, merchants, realtors and others will attend and participate in the conference from which it is expected to issue, a "sound, conservative and safe economic and industrial condition," according to Governor Martin.

Mr. Reynolds will leave the city this morning.

CONQUER CONSTIPATION EASILY

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN relieves constipation because it is 100% BRAN

Mr. McEnery tried part-bran substitutes—but only ALL-BRAN brought complete relief. Here's what he says:

"For fifteen years I was constantly bothered with constipation. . . . About two years ago I tried out mixed bran and corn flakes but did not get much relief. Some eighteen months ago, I began using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. From the first week to this good day, I have never had to take a dose of any laxative medicine of any description."

JAMES D. MCENERY, E. P. McEnery, Alto, Texas.

Constipation is the enemy of health. The cause of more than forty diseases. Don't let this insidious trouble send its poisons through your body. Pimples, spots before the eyes, indigestion and headaches—are warning signs.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation or your money is refunded. Delicious with milk, fruit or with other cereals. Fine in cooking.

Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere.

A Fairyland of Beauty in the Profit line of Value

Buying your home site demands your most careful thought. You want to be surrounded by natural beauty, but you want to know, also, that your home is in a location where values are increasing and will increase.

Garden Hills is a perfect combination of beauty and of enduring value. Garden Hills lies between Peachtree Road and Piedmont Avenue directly on Atlanta's profit line of growth. Its 200 acres of soft rolling woodland sweeps across these two arteries of north travel. Winding roads circle its hills, rustic bridges span brooks which splash over rocky ledges in cool hollows.

The natural beauty of the wooded hills is being carefully preserved. The Country Club, around which the recreation center is to be built, reflects the exquisite charm with which nature has endowed Garden Hills. A modern swimming pool, a Crystal Lake, a riding track, tennis courts and a playground for the children are being built in a forest dell, near the center of the property.

These things of beauty will grip your imagination, just as the vital facts of Garden Hills' location do. Atlanta is growing rapidly to the north and always has grown to the north along Peachtree. Garden Hills, just a step beyond Andrews Drive, is in the very center of the fashionable north side. It is accessible, close in, Peachtree Road and Piedmont Avenue connect it with everything in Atlanta. Property has always been in demand along this Peachtree-Piedmont profit line. The supply is limited.

Garden Hills is probably the last available tract, which, like Ansley Park, extends through from Peachtree to Piedmont.

Garden Hills possesses in an unusual degree the four fundamentals of location which give value to real estate: accessibility, growing population, demand and supply. When you compare Garden Hills with other sections, as we want you to do, you will know why Garden Hills has been called "the most amazing value offered Atlanta since Ansley Park was opened."

Then when you write Garden Hills pre-development prices down beside those you are asked to pay elsewhere, without this Fairyland Beauty, and lacking one or more of the four tests of value, your pencil will quickly show you that you can buy a spacious 60 foot site in Garden Hills with ample depth for building as you want to build, for less money.

Many Garden Hills sites are priced as low as $1500 to $2500—pre-development figures, which are certain to rise as improvements and beautification are extended over the whole property, just as they have risen in every residential development along Atlanta's profit line.

Your own sound judgment must decide. Today, if you wish, call at our downtown office, 197 Peachtree Street, at our office in Garden Hills, or telephone Walnut 5701. One of our courteous representatives will gladly show you the property, tell you the price of sites that you like and explain any details of Garden Hills development plans to you.

Following the Profit Line North!

In one block of Ansley Park, the following increases in value are shown by the records:

A corner lot, originally sold for $9,500 in 1911, was purchased in 1913 for $14,000 as the site for a handsome home.

The next lot, originally sold in 1908 for $2,325, was resold in 1920 for $6,750, and again in 1921 for $8,500.

Another lot sold in 1909 for $2,800, in 1911 for $3,250, and in 1917 for $13,500.

Further on, along Andrews Drive, where lots sold for $6,000 and $6,700 in 1921 and 1922, recent sales of adjoining lots have been at from $15,000 to $21,500.

A 100-foot lot in Peachtree Heights on Peachtree Road was bought in 1924 for $8,000. Since this lot has changed hands twice, at profits of $4,500 and $1,500, within a year.

In the whole area north of Fifteenth Street, less than a hundred houses are rented or being offered for rent.

DECLARES UNION APPROVES BONDS

James P. Davenport, editor of the newspaper at Blairsville and secretary of the Union County Chamber of Commerce, on Tuesday wired the Constitution, contradicting statements attributed to W. E. Candler, of Union county, which declared that there is no such organization as the Union County Chamber of Commerce and declaring that that county is not in favor of state road bonds.

Mr. Davenport, in his telegram, states that the original telegram, published in The Constitution, and signed by the Union County Chamber of Commerce, fairly represents the sentiment of that county. This telegram declared that the people of that section of the state are overwhelmingly in favor of the state road bond plan. Mr. Davenport further states that the Union County Chamber of Commerce perfected its organization last October and has since been endorsed by the county board of education and other bodies. He concludes: "We are for bonds, for good roads, and we are friends and supporters of the highway bond."

The telegram was signed "Union County Chamber of Commerce, by James P. Davenport, secretary."

Bonelli H. Stone, representative from Union county, in the legislature, on Tuesday issued a statement, following publication of Mr. Candler's telegram, in which he charges that local political factions furnished "the motive behind Mr. Candler's action, which the people of my county well understand."

Mr. Stone further states that the Union County Chamber of Commerce, organized last October, has been officially endorsed by the grand jury at that term of court, as well as by the board of education, and that the body since that time has been virile and active, working unselfishly for the best interests of all the people of the county and section.

Mr. Stone declares that, in heartily favoring the road bond issue, he is fairly representing the views of his constituency. Mr. Stone's statement was written on an official letterhead of the Union County Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Stone's statement, together with the telegram from Mr. Davenport, as secretary of the Union County Chamber of Commerce, follows:

Editor Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.: In view of the fact that W. E. Candler, of Blairsville, has published a statement that there is no such organization as the Union County Chamber of Commerce and that the people of Union county are opposed to an issue of state highway bonds, the telegram to The Constitution, copy of which has been sent to me, explains itself.

I represent Union county in the legislature. I am heartily in favor of the road bond issue, and in addition to what the secretary of the chamber of commerce has said, I emphasize the fact that I represent the views of my constituency.

The Union County Chamber of Commerce was organized last October, received the official endorsement of the grand jury at that term of court, as well as the board of education, and since that time has been virile and active, unselfishly for the best interests of all the people of this county and section. It will continue to do so, regardless of local political factions, which I regret was the motive behind Mr. Candler's action, which the people of my county well understand.

BONELLI H. STONE, Representative, Union Co.

The telegram from James P. Davenport, editor of the newspaper at Blairsville, follows:

Georgian Sails With Byrd Group For Arctic Seas

Augusta, Ga., April 6.—(AP)—Georgia is represented on the Byrd Arctic expedition which has just left New York by Robb C. Oertel, of Augusta, son of Dr. T. E. Oertel, who is aboard the Chantier as Commander Byrd's aide, according to his father, who yesterday returned from New York where he bade his son farewell.

BYRD SHIP LEAVES FOR OPEN SEAS.

New York, April 6.—(AP)—After a several delays, the steamship Chantier cleared the bar tonight and started for the open sea with the Byrd Arctic expedition.

At dusk the ship weighed anchor off Roosevelt, Staten Island, where it had stopped yesterday to allow the crew to secure loose cargo. The motors of the t. o. airplanes which the expedition is transporting for exploration in the north were brought from the hold and fastened on deck.

A winch used to hoist the anchor, which had failed to work earlier in the afternoon, was repaired, and the expedition got under way.

HAPEVILLE CHURCH BEGINS REVIVAL

The Rev. Marvin L. Twigg, pastor of St. John Methodist church, Monday opened a ten-day revival at the Hapeville Methodist church, and reports of successful meetings already held were made Tuesday. Two sessions are held daily, at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 7:30 o'clock at night.

The Rev. J. S. Strickland, pastor of Payne Memorial Methodist church, announces that he will continue the revival there for several days. Most of the Atlanta churches ended revivals Sunday. Services at the Payne church are being held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 7:30 o'clock at night.

day for road bonds signed by Union County Chamber of Commerce represents sentiment in this county. This organization was perfected last October and endorsed by board of education and other bodies.

We are for bonds, for good roads, and we are friends and supporters of the highway bond.

(Signed) JAS. P. DAVENPORT, Secretary.

The telegram from Mr. Candler, in which he states that voters of Union county, meeting at the noon recess of court at Blairsville, declared the original telegram in support of road bonds misrepresented their views, and adding that there is not "never has been and may never be" such an organization as the Union County Chamber of Commerce, follows:

Blairsville, Ga., April 5, Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.: Union county superior court is now being held. A fake telegram appearing in The Constitution of today, April 3, from this place and signed Union County Chamber of Commerce, pertaining to representing the views of voters of this section on the question now pending in legislature affecting the highway bond, bonds, additional gas tax, was read in a mass meeting of at least 500 voters and taxpayers of Union county assembled in court house at noon recess of court. The fake telegram above and its author were stated totally to misrepresent their views and without authority from them. There is no such organization as Union County Chamber of Commerce, never has been and may never be.

(Signed) W. E. CANDLER.

TECH PROGRAM HEADED BY JUSTICE GILBERT

Honor day exercises were held Tuesday at Georgia School of Technology, with Justice Price Gilbert, of the Georgia supreme court as principal speaker. Judge Gilbert was introduced by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president, who also made a brief address.

Judge Gilbert devoted his time to "scholarship," his material being gained through attendance at Vanderbilt university and Yale college and from experience in life.

He emphasized the fact that a man might be a scholar without having attended a high institution of learning, or that his attending such an institution did not necessarily make him a scholar unless he had the scholarly requirements—love of books and learning. His college training taught him how to become a scholar, or a better scholar, and learning did not end with the college career. He stressed the difference between the casual and the systematic observer, and said the first aim should be the discovery of truth. He did not think modern youth morally worse than that of his college days.

The Old Reliable's 1925 Record

This Railroad has just completed its greatest year of service to its patrons and to the South, and the following statement is submitted in the belief that its details will interest that public which has made possible this banner year:

Carloads of freight handled, approximately	2,000,000
Number of tons handled	65,800,000
Higher than best previous year by	12.5%
Number of passengers carried	10,381,000
Average journey of each passenger (miles)	65.62
Employees in service	51,700
Total payroll	$75,751,000.
Improvements made during the year	$17,400,000.
State, Federal and other taxes paid, over	$ 7,000,000.

A great trunk-line railroad system is the finest industrial asset a community or city can possess. The above statistics indicate the great value of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad to the South, where 96% of the "Old Reliable's" mileage is located.

That the management of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad anticipates an even greater volume of business during this and succeeding years, and that it is preparing to take care of this business, is indicated by the fact that the appropriation so far for 1926 for standard equipment and other modern road-way facilities, approximates $26,000,000.00, and this figure will be enlarged as the year progresses.

CRACKERS BOW TO REDS BY 13-TO-8 COUNT

EDITED BY
H.C. HAMILTON

Local Moundsmen Pounded by Visitors To Win Hard Game

Bagby and Love Succumb to Visiting Batters For 17 Hits—Crackers, With Three Regulars Out of Game, Look Better Than in Previous Game.

BY H. C. HAMILTON

With the Crackers in their customary early season condition—full of crippled athletes—the Cincinnati Reds, although they also were in a limping condition, had very little difficulty in macing out enough hits at Spiller's park Tuesday afternoon to defeat the Southern league champions, 13 to 8.

Both Jim Bagby and Ruel Love, the right-handers, who worked for the Crackers, were pounded by considerable gusto, but Lucas, who started for the big league visitors, barely escaped with his hide, and Springer, who succeeded him, had to be lifted in the ninth inning before Jack Hendricks could take the game away. The Crackers, in short, looked much better than they did the day previous against the Detroit Tigers. If the improvement continues, the Columbus American association team, which appears today at 2:30, is in for a licking.

Crackers Start Good.

The Crackers started after the ball game at the start as if they meant to win. With two down, Wilbur Good shot a hot grounder to the right of Wally Pipp, the Red first-sacker. Pipp missed up the hit and Good beat his throw to Lucas. Al Niehaus then cracked a long double to right-center and Good scored. He should have been out down on a throw to the plate, but Ivy Wingo let the throw get away from him.

Two were gone when the Crackers again went into action in the second inning. Brock singled and scored when Jim Bagby socked a double to right. Murphy singled, placing Bagby on third and both counted when Niehoff doubled to the fence in left-center.

Good tripled to the right-field bank to open the fifth and registered while Parrish was being thrown out. Parrish was subbing in left field for Mule Haas, who hurt his leg Monday sliding into third base.

The Crackers staged a belated rally in the ninth inning, which, however, brought them very little comfort. Niehaus led off with a single. Parrish fled out and Krehmyer grounded out. Niehaus advancing to third during the process. Durocher drew a base on balls and went second without any interference. John Brock shot a single to left, his third blow of the afternoon, scoring Niehaus and Durocher. He was out on a throw without any play being made for him and counted the final run when Roy Luebke, hitting for Love, singled. Murphy ended the game with a grounder to Bohne at shortstop.

The Reds did not score until the third inning, and then registered one hit by Christensen and Bressler and a passed ball by Brock.

Score Five in Fourth.

The visiting firemen, however, turned loose the savagery in the fourth and nicked the plate five times before Bagby could get the side retired. Skipper Niehoff, playing at third base in place of the injured Red Smith, gave the visitors their start when he muffed up a grounder by Critz. Bohne dropped a single in right field, placing Critz on first and himself went to second when Good booted the ball. Wingo's single to right scored both Critz and Bohne. Lucas then turned loose an unexpected single to right, placing Wingo on third, whence he scored when Christensen sent a long fly to Good. Drensen fled out, but Bressler singled, sending Lucas to third. Pipp walked to fill the bases and Walker singled, scoring Bressler and Lucas. Critz fled out to end the inning.

In the fifth the Reds counted one more tally on a single by Bohne, a sacrifice by Wingo and a second single by Lucas.

The big leaguers went scoreless in the sixth, but in the seventh they again laid down a barrage on Love which ended all doubt as to who would win the pastime. Krehmyer erred on Critz's roller to start the inning, and promptly stole second. Bohne dropped a single in left which scored Critz. Wingo fled to Good. Springer, who had succeeded Lucas in the box, sacrificed, sending Bohne to second and himself reached first on Niehaus' error on the roller. Christensen drove a long double to left, scoring both Bohne and Christensen. Drensen popped to Durocher, but Bressler singled to score Christensen. Bressler took second on the throw to get Christensen and scored on Pipp's single. The latter took second on the throw to the plate and scored when Walker singled. Walker ended the inning when he tried to steal and was thrown out to Krehmyer by Brock.

Crackers Crippled.

The Crackers were in a badly-crippled condition, but probably will be able to send their regular lineup into the field today against Columbus. Sumpter Clarke was spiked Monday when Catcher Manion stepped on his heel while chasing a pop fly and was out of the game Tuesday. Haas is suffering from a bruised leg, injured during a slide to third base Monday. Red Smith still is suffering from flu, but probably will report soon.

In spite of these troubles the local team looked very good Tuesday. The infield, in spite of the handling it has undergone was fast and efficient. Bagby and Love suffered little in comparison with the three National leaguers who opposed them on the mound.

BY CLARENCE NIXON.
Carlos Torre, one of the greatest chess players in the world, will arrive in the city this morning for a series of games here with some of the chess experts of the city.

Carlos, although rated as one of the world's greatest chess players, is only 21 years of age. Despite his youth, he has defeated some of the world's cleverest players.

He will stop at the Henry Grady hotel while in the city, and will play games simultaneously in the ballroom of the hotel. He will play some 20 or 25 local stars.

HERE'S SOME BASEBALL

At the top, left, you will find Al Niehaus, the new Cracker first baseman, explaining to Red Wingo how the bat hits the ball. Next door at the left is Wilbur Good, although it looks very little like him, sliding into third and not making it. At the lower left is a good picture of a Rod Murphy safe hit. To the right and at the bottom are Jack Hendricks, the genial manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and Adolfo Luque, his star right-handed Cuban pitcher. The photographs were made by Kenneth Rogers.

AGGIES TRIM PETREL TEAM BY 8-6 SCORE

BY LAMAR JACKSON.

Oglethorpe baseballers were hosted by the Michigan Aggies Tuesday afternoon in five innings by an 8-to-6 count. The game being called in order that the visitors might catch their home-bound train. Had the game lasted longer, the Petrels might have had a different tale to tell, as in the last half of the sixth they were at bat and with heavy hitters up.

The Northerners began their bombardment in the first inning and secured six hits off Garlington's delivery in the three innings he worked before relieved by Hoke Walton. Walton fared little better and was relieved in the fourth by "Lefty" York, who held the victors well under control for the remainder of the fracas.

The Petrels were not to be outdone in this respect, however, and they drove the Aggies' first moundsmen, Bremen, from the box in the fourth inning. He was relieved by Wakefield, who halted the Petrel assault until the beginning of the sixth, when they got to him again, only to be stopped by the end of a short game.

In the initial inning both teams registered. Michigan tallied twice after getting a couple of free passes, a double, and a single. In the last half the Petrels crossed the pan three times with two passes, a double, and a single off Bremer.

In the fatal third the Aggies found the delivery of Garlington easy. Rinehart cracked a triple to center field. Kiebler grounded to Garlington, who caught Rinehart on his attempt to go home. Fremont singled over second, scoring Kiebler. A flock of hits sent four more runs across.

In the fourth the Petrel batters chased Bremer, getting four safe hits off his delivery.

With two men down Boswell clouted a long fly to left field, getting two bases, and scored on Shepherd's double over third. Cousins singled to left and Shepherd crossed the plate. Wakefield relieved Bremer and Wall singled to score Cousins.

The leading lights for Oglethorpe were Boswell and Shepherd, each getting two safe blows.

The Petrels meet their next foe Friday and Saturday when they enter-

Memphis, Tenn., April 6.—(AP)—

Frank Kohlbecker, rated last season as one of the best catchers in the Southern association, will wear the uniform of the Memphis Chickasaws again this year. Kohlbecker was sold to Brooklyn at the end of the 1925 season but after the spring training season, the Robins found themselves with a surplus of backstops, and Kohlbecker was turned back. He reported to the Memphis training camp today.

Alabama Blanks Illinois, 8 to 0

BY BOB MATHERNE.

University, Ala., April 6.—Hutto and B. Lewis held Illinois to two hits here today while Alabama was pounding the Bears in the trenches to win by the score 8-0. Hutto gave up a hit to the first man that faced him and in only two innings did he pitch to more than three men, four facing him in the fourth and four in the fifth. The extra men were there by walks and an error by Sewell.

When R. Lewis took up the burden, he held the Illinois team to one hit in two innings, but got in trouble once by walking two men. Slick Vincent with three strikes when men were out, led the Crimson attack. Conatser and Barnes also had on their hitting clothes, getting two bingles each, both of Conatser's being for extra bases.

Fire in Corn Crib.

Summerville, Ga., April 6.—(Special.)—Between 125 and 150 bushels of corn were destroyed in a fire which consumed the crib of W. E. Dunnaway on the Biting farm about one mile below here Tuesday. It is believed the fire was caused by thieves stealing corn as the crib door, which was locked Sunday night, was open when Mr. Dunnaway reached the burning building.

Yes "Off-Color" Teeth Can Now Be Lightened

Gums Firmed to Healthy Coral Tint

Accept full 10-day tube of this new way that leading dental authorities urge. Your teeth are not naturally dull... simply clouded by a dingy film coat now easily cleared off.

THERE is now a new way in tooth and gum care. A way that acts differently from ordinary pastes and dentifrices. A way that clears cloudy teeth to sparkling whiteness; that firms gums to a healthy coral tint.

Modern dental science has made important new discoveries. It's been proved teeth are seldom naturally "off color." Simply clouded by a film that old-time dentifrices did not successfully clear off.

Let us send you a full 10-day tube to try. By clearing your teeth of that film coat, you may change your whole appearance.

What film is—dulls teeth, invites gum disorders

Dental science now traces scores of tooth and gum troubles to a germ-laden film that forms on your teeth. Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it—a slippery, viscous coating.

That film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It makes teeth look "off color."

That film clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack. Germs by the millions breed in it.

FILE the worst enemy to teeth

You can feel it with your tongue

Coppedge, and C. E. Coppedge, of Ensley, Ala.; and R. A. Coppedge, of New Orleans, La., and a sister, Mrs. W. P. Cagle, of Bridgeport, Ala.

Loew's Grand.

There is a lively and snappy bill of vaudeville on the boards this week at Loew's Grand theater headed by its "50 Miles From Broadway," a clever musical comedy with eleven singers and dancers and musicians in the cast. The show is filled with comedy and several attractive novelties are offered. Other popular acts on the bills are Carson and Willard in a comedy skit "Meet the Doctor," Leonard Grace, musicians and roller skaters, the Jada trio, in a series of songs and dances and Francis and Wilson "Acrobatic."

He was attempting to aid a stranded motorist, who had run out of gas.

Keith's Forsyth.

Wednesday will be the last opportunity to view one of the most comical bills of the season at Keith's Forsyth theater, where N. V. A. week is being celebrated in a way that brings to the fore all the humor of the vaudeville stage.

The first half of the week is Harry Holman, well-known comedian and character actor, a sort of dean of the school, who is in the play "The Hard Boiled Hampton." Mr. Holman is assisted by Edith Manson, who in addition to other abilities possesses an exceptional sense of humor. The program also has four other good acts.

The Howard Theater.

Harold Lloyd—head of the appealing smile, modest manner and horn-rimmed glasses, arrived in the Howard theater, in his latest comedy opus, "For Heaven's Sake!" The steady and continuous roar of laughter that greeted the initial unfolding of this film at the Howard theater Monday and Tuesday night was an eloquent and well-deserved tribute to the most hilarious and fruitful entertainment the current season has yet produced.

There isn't a dull moment in the entire production. It bubbles pep and action.

Beautiful music, clever dancing, much of it of the cyclonic type, and gorgeous costumes, sets and light effects characterize the new John Murray Anderson review, "The Dime Museum." The scene of this diversion, the setting for which was designed by Hermann Rosse, is a wax figure gallery in a typical dime museum of a past generation. The revue runs about twenty minutes.

Metropolitan Theater.

More heart-grIPPING than "Beau Brummel" is "The Sea Beast," John Barrymore's latest photoplay, which is unrelenting daily at the Metropolitan theater. Founded on Herman Muller's novel "Moby Dick," it is a film that is easily forgotten, but thrills with its magnificent horrors.

Moby Dick is a name given to the sea monster, a mythical creature, who exacts a score of lives at every turn. Nothing daunted, those brave American whalers still pursue him by hundreds. In this picture, John Barrymore, as Ahab, the captain of the ship, is a man who is rivals for a girl's love. As Ahab, the elder stands ready to harpoon Moby Dick, 1312 feet long, in a fit of jealousy pushes him over the sea and causes Ahab to lose his leg to Moby Dick. Ahab is hastily pulled aboard and his leg is amputated. The thrilling horror of this scene alone stamps the film as a masterpiece.

Ahab is still unaware that his brother is responsible for his mutilation. His anxiety and his fears regarding him now that he has a white whale in place of a leg, provide Barrymore with his most dramatic moment in the film. Enrico Leide presents a very appropriate musical accompaniment.

The Rialto.

In addition to "Steel Preferred," the feature picture, the Rialto theater this week presents several other numbers especially arranged for the Easter week celebration to make the program unusually attractive. A special picture of the Junior League follies, a rehearsal.

The stage presentation takes the form of a miniature revue staged under the personal direction of Miss Nellie Sullivan, Atlanta's premier dancer and instructor in the art of tetrachore, who presents several of her prettiest and most talented girls students in a series of singing, dancing and pantomime acts, suggestive of and appropriate to the occasion.

Paramount Theater.

The best of comedy; the most excellent dancers; harmonious voices; lush scenery and gorgeous costumes feature F. S. Wolcott's original "Rabbit Foot" company which will be the attraction to draw crowds of pleasure seekers to the Paramount theater tonight at 11 o'clock.

A 16 piece jazz orchestra is an essential feature of the show that is said to add quite a novel and pleasing touch to the production. Jazz attains its fullest meaning only when played by a negro, to whom it has been a sort of national anthem for ages past. From the time the show opens, the curtain is rung down on a circus day act, the audience's time will be crisscrossed full of fun and merriment. Tickets are on sale at the Rialto, at Auburn avenue and at Chess' Place at Five Points.

Tudor Theater.

In "The Little Giant" at the Tudor theater today Glenn Hunter plays a type which is entirely new to him in which he is said to have accomplished a remarkable characterization. He plays the role of a self-sufficient and unattractive youth who thinks he knows more than his old dad. Hunter is supported by David Higgins, Edna Murphy, Jim Bradley, J. J. Lewis, Larry Lester, Meeker, Louise Mackintosh, Thomas McGuire, Dodson Mitchell and Pete Raymond.

West End Theater.

Earl Hudson stopped at nothing to get realism and genuine thrills into "The Knockout" at the West End theater today, starring Milton Sills.

In order to obtain the correct atmosphere for the outdoor scene in this picture of the Canadian woods he sent his company into the wilds of Northern Ontario and Quebec.

81 Theater.

Susie Susie and her great Bon Ton company will combine to make the midnight hours Friday night ring with laughter and applause down to Decatur street at the 81 theater. Since their last appearance here, Manager Chas. P. Bailey has been the recipient of many requests for a return engagement.

The Novelty Four, a quartet of male voices, also very much called for, will present a new collection of songs that made its first appearance at the 81 theater. It was called then "fast steps with fine voices" and there is every reason to believe that the show has improved since that time. Tickets may be had at the theater, 81 Decatur street, or at Chess' Place at Five Points.

Balmy Spring Weather Adds Inspiration To Day's Events

With the advent of really warm spring days, society takes on a charming phase that gives inspiration and added significance to the many and interesting affairs planned for each day's diversion and amusement.

April, truly the month of brides and weddings, is holding its traditional "own" this year, as several of the most popular and admired members of society will "plight their troth" this week at weddings that will long be remembered in the annals of Atlanta society.

With Easter, the end of Lent, and the beginning of new life, parties and social events begin to heap up in an almost confused manner. So many delightful luncheons, teas, dinners, bridge parties, etc., are planned for each day that it truly seems impossible to crowd each anticipated event into the seemingly few hours of the day.

From now until the end of the month, one will rush in almost breathless delight through days of endless amusement. Weddings and parties of all kinds will keep the members of society delightfully engaged throughout this week, while the week of April 12 will be devoted to the Junior League Follies, which just precedes the week of April 19, the high-water mark of the Atlanta social season, when the Metropolitan opera presents its magnificent productions.

Weddings for Today.
Three prominent weddings that will take place today are of especial interest to all groups of Atlanta society. Miss Martha Allen Boynton will wed Oscar Goldsmith Davis at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Trinity Methodist church, the ceremony at the church to be followed by a reception at the Piedmont Driving club. The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Kingsbury Humphrey and James Sloan Coleman, Jr., will take place in the chapel at Fort McPherson at 8:30 o'clock this evening. Miss Irma Graham Heath will be married to Benjamin Ernest Shields at 7:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church in Decatur.

TWO FAMOUS WOMEN BORN IN SAME YEAR

Queen Victoria and Lydia E. Pinkham

MRS. ANNA MCHEERY
1005 E. PLUM STREET, MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

Marshall, Illinois.—"After my second child was born, I never saw a well day for five years. My father was telling his druggist about my condition, and the druggist insisted that father take a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I had no trouble of any kind."—Mrs. ANNA MCHEERY, 1005 E. Plum St., Marshall, Illinois.

Another Woman Helped

Philadelphia, Penna.—Mrs. Caroline Nagy, of 2717 Sears St., in a recent letter to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., says that after her child was born she was in a very weak condition. She could not seem to regain her health and went to her mother for advice. She told her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it had helped her when in like condition, and it has helped her mother also. So Mrs. Nagy started taking it. She felt better after taking the first bottle, after taking six bottles her weakness and other troubles disappeared, and she is never done praising the Compound.

In some families the fourth generation is learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Exquisite Old Point Lace To Be Worn in Bridal Array As the Usual 'Something Old'

BY BEVERLY BURGESS.

"Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue!"
Such is the decree of custom in the tout ensemble of all brides. Nothing out of the ordinary is this, but a practice as old as the ages themselves.
How traditions and usages hedge us around, and what would life be but for its sentiments and heart tugs?

Saturday's Bride.

In the bright, happy plans of Atlanta's outstanding bride of Saturday, Miss Hawkins, the youngest daughter of Mrs. William Hawkins and the late William E. Hawkins, who on this day is to marry Charlton Theus, of Savannah, one finds that this age-old practice is to be strictly adhered to.

Of "something new" there undoubtedly will be an abundance; "something borrowed" will there be in a dainty mouchou, loaned, probably, by one of the charming sisters of the bride; "something blue" also will be present, but as to the "something old" nothing could be more intriguing than the working out of said detail!

Point de Duchess.

Listen—into the bridal veil of this fair Atlanta girl is to be woven an exquisite piece of duchess point lace which has been in the family for many years.

When Will's father and mother were on their very own honeymoon in Europe—this same piece of wonderful lace was purchased by the happy bride of those days in Brussels.

As the little daughters came along into the family circle, it was decreed that each should wear, as brides, this piece of lace on her wedding day.
The bride veil of the eldest daughter, Helen, when she became, a few years ago, the bride of Arthur Clarke, was ornate with it as was the one of Mary Hawkins Strobber. One exception there has been and that was in the very recent marriage of lovely Elizabeth Hawkins when she elected to marry John Hopkins during a visit to Texas friends instead of waiting for the proscribed form as per original plans and announcements.

High Noon Wedding.

The wedding Saturday of Will to Charlton Theus will be celebrated at high noon at the home of the bride's mother on Piedmont avenue.

The two matrons of honor will be the sisters of the bride, Mrs. Arthur Clarke and Mrs. Cecil Barron Strobber.

The bridesmaids will be four of Atlanta's most charming girls, Ida Sadler, Harriet Shelden, Ellen Newell and Bessie Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hopkins, are coming from Texas for this beautiful wedding of Saturday.

Voltage High.

Something has been found which is in perfect accord with the times—one of Tech's social clubs! This is known as "The High Tension Club." Have you ever heard of a more suggestive or fitting title in your life?

This up-to-date body of Tech men have only yesterday issued invitations to a dance on April 10 to be held at the Tech gym.

Here are the lines all written on a card over which are scrawling real live wires, linemen falling from poles to their certain death, and with voltage popping through each word of the invitation.

Here they are: "The High Tension Club of Georgia Tech invites you to transmit yourself to the Tech gymnasium substation, April 10, 1926, to assist them to synchronize their oscillating footsteps with the pulsating high tension, generated by the action of the high movers on the fundamental instruments to produce the proper magnetic field for a dance of infinite voltage—Station operating 9-12."
A live affair will this be, no doubt.

Last Night's Sport Ball.

The sport ball given by the Pi Kappa Phi of Oglethorpe last night at the Druid Hills Golf club was a very pretty and unusual party.

Herein was contained a wide field for action the suggestion of a "sport ball."

The costumes were varied, interesting and becoming.

Atlanta's young, as well as older crowd, in the social world, seems to have a penchant for doing what they do thoroughly and attractively when it comes to a matter of dress and costume.

Here, verily, was a fashion show in which the male element present participated—an innovation a little out of the ordinary for a cut-and-dried fashion show.

The few cream trousers and green flannel or gray flannel coats, with shoes, socks and ties—also hats—to suit, were the last word in male fashion attire I assure you! One might easily have thought that part of Palm Beach or any of the other resorts of the millionaire's playground—Florida—might have been suddenly transported.

"Still Breaking Records,"

WITHOUT the excessive effort for booms of any sort, Atlanta goes steadily on breaking all previous records of growth—records which the city has made in the past decade, and records which her sister cities have made. There is a sustained growth in the vital statistics of Atlanta which is unequalled by any other city in the South.

Atlanta broke all records for the month of February in building permits among the cities of the South. No year has ever registered such figures in building permits during the shortest month of the twelve. The total building permits in Atlanta for February, 1926, reached the unprecedented sum of $5,781,575.

Atlanta bank clearings for March, 1926, exceeded the peak clearings of March, 1920. At the end of the first four weeks of March, this year, the clearings had reached the high mark of $293,846,148. Substantial growth over 1925 March clearings is seen in a study of the figures. The 1925 March clearings amounted to $281,572,004. Bank clearings for 1924 amounted to $2,895,571,944 whereas the clearings for 1925 amounted to $3,604,290,298.

Atlanta broke her own high record of taxable property last year to a marked degree. The value of all taxable property in 1924 was $483,897,410. In 1925 the value of taxable property amounted to $507,799,250. This figure will be materially raised when the 1926 record is written. Valuations in Atlanta are steadily climbing because of the constant and sustained growth in population and because of the development here of so many major industrial interests.

Why all this growth? That is an inevitable question, and Atlantans are always glad to have the question asked. The answer is to be found in the fact that industry can no longer hope to serve the country from one point. The changing methods of marketing, of manufacturing, and of distributing the major products of our country have demanded quicker service—possible only through the establishment of branch plants and sales organizations. Atlanta offers the logical point for meeting the new conditions for the great Southeast area. All the world is now looking to the South and Atlanta is the first place they come to in seeking the natural center for this new era of development. And, let it be remembered, Georgia has no income tax. Georgia has no inheritance tax, but takes one-fourth of the Federal inheritance tax and nothing from the estate of the deceased.

Facts about ATLANTA

The record of building permits for the larger cities of the South during the month of February, 1926, reveals the preminship which Atlanta has taken in her sustained growth. Note the figures:

INSTALLMENT XXXIX.

CELIA now had her eyes on the plaited silver girdle, which she was clicking together, alternately loosening and tightening it.

"Is that the way you felt when you loved some one?" she asked Hilary.

In spite of his being so sorry for her, Hilary was vexed.

"I have told you that I was never really in love with any one," he said, coldly.

"You seem to be so sure," murmured Celia.

"One isn't denied intelligence and observation, necessarily, because one is denied the power to love," retorted Hilary, becoming slightly Grandisonian in his speech, as he always did when irritated. Then he felt that his irritation was silly and shook it off.

"Perhaps I can clear up your doubts by a few questions," he said in his usual kind voice. "Shall I put them to you?"

"Yes, please," said Celia.

"Then, first of all, how would you feel if some one came in and told you that O'Shea was dead?"

Celia grew paler.

"I should be very unhappy," she murmured.

"How unhappy?" pressed Hilary.

"O, very, very unhappy."

"Unhappy enough to make you wish that you had been his wife before he died?"

"I . . . I don't know."

"This is quibbling!" exclaimed Hilary. "You must know. Well, aren't you going to answer?"

"I . . . I think so."

Hilary got up and stalked the room, and Celia sat looking at him, thinking it very strange that, having had no experience of love, he was yet so sure about its symptoms.

"You think . . . You think . . . You don't know . . . You suppose," growled he, coming back and standing over her. "I must remind you, my dear girl, that you are not a baby, though you persist in acting like one. Either you love O'Shea or you don't love him. That's what I must find out. Because, seriously, Celia, the time has come when I must act."

She looked scared.

"You must act?"

"Yes, I . . . Again he stalked away, then back.

"Please listen to me very seriously," he said. "The time has come for me to speak out. If you are hurt by what I say, I shall be profoundly sorry, but say it I must."

"I want you to," said Celia.

"You said you wanted truth, not kindness," began Hilary. "Here it is, then. Though naturally I don't hear it, I know well that people have begun to talk—and unpleasantly—about your intimacy with O'Shea."

Celia took this in, though rather slowly, then her long throat reared itself and her face took on its "topiary" look.

"I don't care in the least what people say about me," she assured him with extreme haughtiness.

"You may not, but I do," retorted Hilary.

"I will explain to you why," he continued in his coolest, most clear cut way. "You see, what has apparently escaped you is the fact that you are not responsible for yourself alone but for me also."

He paused; then went on in a milder voice:

"You see, in the world's eyes you are my wife. You bear my name."

He waited for this to sink in. It sank deeper and more bitingly than he had intended. Celia, who had grown quite pale again after her intense blush, turned livid. She bent her head, and he saw that her clasped hands were shaking.

"I'm very, very sorry to have hurt you," he said, compunction beginning to hurt him also. "But I had to do it. . . . You seemed so utterly blind to that side of the question, I simply had to."

"Yes, you had to."

He could scarcely hear the words.

"I see that . . . I quite understand . . . now."

Hilary took the chair near hers again and put his hand over the shaking ones.

"It hurts me awfully to have to hurt you, Celia," he said. "Do you believe me?"

"Yes."

"And do you see now that the situation forces me to act?"

"Act . . . how?" she asked.

"I must set you free—as soon as may be."

"Give me a divorce, you mean?"

"Of course."

"I won't accept it! I won't accept it!"

"You must let me be the judge in this, my dear."

She was shaking all over.

"I will never accept it," she repeated.

"Well," cried Hilary, almost as wrought up as she was and quite at the end of his patience, "you force me into a damned disagreeable position. Since you are so—longed to say 'pig-headed'—so obstinate, there's nothing left me but to see O'Shea himself."

Celia got to her feet, "all of a piece," as the French say.

She stared at him through a haze of horror.

"You . . . you . . . wouldn't do that?" she stammered.

"I most assuredly would and shall," replied Hilary. He had never been so excited in his life and scarcely realized the full force of what he was saying.

"I take it for granted that your good name is at least as dear to him as it is to me. And that he is a gentleman, with a gentleman's ideas of honor, so that he will understand the plight I'm in, though you don't seem able to. I shall appeal to him to persuade you of the importance of your assent. And then I shall leave you—not without deep regret—for good. You will get your decree of divorce about a year after, I believe. I've only one thing to ask you—and that's for your own sake. Do not see O'Shea, even once, while the divorce is proceeding."

He stopped, out of breath, feeling quite giddy.

She was standing rigid before him, her gaze fastened on the floor.

She spoke at last in a strange, thin little voice:

"Will you . . . give me . . . three days to think it over?"

"To think it over?"

"Yes. If I decide to . . . accept a divorce I will do just as you wish about it. And . . . if I find that . . . I don't . . . care for him enough . . ."

"Yes," prompted Hilary.

"I will . . . never see him again."

His relief was so great that he felt numb from it.

Then he heard his voice saying with unnatural stiffness:

"That is only fair. Three days, then. Thank you, Celia."

"I may see him once, if I wish, during those three days?"

"Certainly."

Then he made a great effort to be natural again, but it was useless.

"Let me call Donovan!" he said as she turned away. "You ought to have some one with you."

"Thank you, I'd rather be alone," said Celia.

New York, April 6.—(AP)—Heavy liquidation by Wall street interests weakened cotton prices sharply today, but was followed in late trading by rallies on covering which left the market finally steady in tone and unchanged to 10 points net lower, near months showing the best improvement.

The market opened steady to 7 points lower. Instead of the rain in the southwest predicted the previous day, traders found a very favorable weather map, including warm temperatures over the entire belt and only a few traces of moisture in Texas.

Steadiness, with a slower speculative business featured the middle of the session, the technical position having evidently been improved by the liquidation of the first hour. No further efforts were made by local bears to promote lower prices, and near the close nervous covering, partly influenced by fears of possible rains in the southwest over-night, gave the market a fair uplift from the lowest. May closing at 18.67 and October at 17.45.

Private reports from Carolina mills indicated that business in goods was very poor, but did not confirm the drastic curtailment that earlier advice had suggested as one of the possibilities of the near future.

Port receipts, 27,637; exports, 15,498, making 6,638,222 thus far this season; United States port stocks, 1,149,121.

The Day in Finance

By
R. L. BARNUM

New York, April 6.—Trading in stocks today was again quieter than at any time since early last September. The feature of the market was absence of liquidation. When the bears unsuccessfully attacked the stock market yesterday morning on the basis of a deficit published by the clearing house banks here they learned that that deficit was really a picture that had passed as it represented preparations for the large first quarter April 1 interest and dividend payments and that money instead of getting tighter anticipated was growing much easier.

In the absence today of resumed in the motors, steel and railway equipment shares that carried prices up from 1 to 2 points or more. No less than 30 to 40 prominent industrial stocks are now trending "flat" which indicates that there is a large outstanding short interest.

If customers of a stock exchange house buy for long account say 100 shares of steel common at 23.00, the broker will carry the stock at $2,000 margin, he borrows $1,500 from his broker to carry the stock, and pays the broker interest on the $1,500 at the prevailing call money rate. If a trader wants to go short of 100 shares of steel common at 23.00, he puts up $2,000 and his broker borrows $1,500 from the market. The broker lending it the market price for the stock, that is $12,500, and the money thus obtained is loaned by the broker to the steel company at the prevailing interest rate on call loans. However, when there is a large outstanding short interest stocks are loaned "flat" which means no interest is charged.

Commission houses here representing the big outside public report that there is little buying of long stocks. Evidently the bargain-hunter buying, which was in evidence when prices were declining rapidly last week, has spent itself. When the

In the oil shares, the bullish effect of recent gasoline price advances being counteracted by private estimates of a fall in oil prices, the price of oil shares closed a point lower at 62.14, a firm undertone. Traders generally appeared to be awaiting further light on the business situation before extending their commitments or engaging in new operations. Operators on the long side showed some encouragement from the ease of money rates and the optimistic forecasts from leaders in the automotive and electrical re-equipment industries.

Revival of bullish activity in the public utilities was accompanied by rumors of special dividend distributions. Recent strength of American Light & Traction was explained today when directors declared an extra dividend of $2 on the common stock and increased the regular annual rate from $7 to $9. The stock soared 12 points to 225.12 in the early trading but cancelled all its gain and closed a point lower on subsequent profit-taking.

United Gas & Improvement was run up nearly 3 points to 92.58 as against a recent low of 84, and American Power & Light, American Gas & Electric, Associated Gas & Electric and Midwest Utilities sold a point or more higher.

Stock Prices Recover On New Bull Market

Commission Houses Report Little or No Buying of Stocks, and the Belief is That Bargain Hunting Buying Has Spent Itself.

New York, April 6.—(AP)—Stock prices made further recovery in today's market. The rally, while provided with a background of favorable financial and trade developments, was generally regarded as a further reaction of an oversold condition resulting from the drastic liquidation of stocks last month. Closing quotations disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from fractions to 10 points. Trading was again in relatively light volume, the day's sale aggregating 1,246,400 shares.

The announcement that stock exchange brokers' loans had been reduced over $55,000,000 last week helped to revive confidence. Other bullish factors included continued ease of money rates, more favorable reports from the automobile industry and the prompt oversubscription of the $65,000,000 Associated Electric bond issue, the largest this year.

Equipment shares gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength with buying influenced by predictions of substantially higher railroad orders this year. Pullman jumped 5 points to 157.12 and American Locomotive, Railroad, General Railway Signal, New York Air Brake and Westinghouse Air Brake closed 2 to 3 points higher.

Utilities were based on predictions of special dividend distributions, the first of which was fulfilled today when directors of the American Light and Traction company increased the annual dividend on the common from $7 to $9, and declared an extra of $2. Columbia Gas and Electric, which is reported to be considering the distribution of a stock dividend or an increase in the regular $2.00 rate, closed 1 1/2 points higher at 75.18 after selling a point above that figure.

Manila Electric corporation jumped nearly 5 points to 34, or within a point of the year's high. Philadelphia company and Standard Gas and Electric each lost about a point on profit taking. Optimistic reports on the motor industry came from several sources. Mack Trucks, which did a record-breaking business in March, was bid up over 3 points to 112.12, and then eased to 112.38. Hudson, General Motors and Packard advanced a point or two. Short covering operations played a prominent part in the advanced in these issues, which are reported to harbor a larger short interest than any other group.

The approach of the spring planting season probably accounted for the heavy demand for the chemical and fertilizer issues. Special strength of the commercial solvents issues, each of which moved up over 3 points, was associated with a report that the company had won important patent litigation in England. Allied Chemical, the new Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred issues, Mathieson alkali and American Agricultural Chemical, all showed net gains of 1 to nearly 3 1/2 points.

Oils were slow in recovering from the disappointment occasioned by the abandonment of the plan for the merger of the Texas company and California Petroleum company. Stearns displayed a firm undertone. United States Steel common touched a new high on the current recovery at 123.58 and Gulf States, Sloss-Sheffield and Republic each advanced about 2 points. Substantial gains also were recorded by Air Reduction, American Smelting & American Iron, Associated Dry Goods, J. I. Case, Coca-Cola, Federal Mining and Smelting, preferred, General Electric, Loew-Wilco, Biscuit, May Department Stores, United Drug and Woolworth, all up 2 to nearly 6 points, and South Porto Rican Sugar up 10.

Southern Dairies "A" advanced 3 1/2 to a new high record at 49.34 on reports that sales for the first three months of the year had established a new high record.

Cottonseed Oil.
New York, April 6.—Taking advantage of easier crude oil and lard local bears pressed the selling side of cottonseed oil today, but absorption by refiners and shorts checked the decline.
